William Greer Harrison Crosses Great Divide

Was a Resident of Carmel
for Several Years

Exceeding by ten years the three score and ten allotted by the Psalmist, William Greer Harrison was called to his fathers on Sunday afternoon.

Everyone who knew the distinguished gentleman loved him. And a great many knew him. He enjoyed a most unusual acquaintance among the world's great men.

Mr. Harrison, upon his retirement from business some six years ago, established his home in Carmel-by-the-Sea, where he continued to reside until the death of his wife two years ago. He has visited here frequently since then, however.

The deceased was a native of County Donegal, Ireland. He arrived in San Francisco from Australia in 1876, and for over thirty years was engaged in the insurance business.

He was best known, however, in connection with the Olympic Athletic Club, of which he was President for twenty years. During his incumbency the organization became one of the best of its kind in the world.

He achieved some distinction in matters literary. In July, 1913, his play, "Runnymede," was produced at our Forest Theatre.

All his life Mr. Harrison was a devout churchman. At the time of his death he was senior warden of All Saints Episcopal Church here.

The Carmel Manzanita Club, of which deceased was an honorary member, on Monday evening adjourned out of respect to his memory.

Truly "It is More Blessed to Give Than to Receive"

Try it. The Pine Cone office, as heretofore, will be the assembling and distributing center for those in Carmel who desire to donate articles of wearing apparel, food, toys and money for the needy.

"The poor we have always with us." In Carmel and vicinity there are a number of worthy poor and unfortunate. To make the way of these a little easier, a little happier, at this approaching Christmas season, is the duty of all of us who have enjoyed even limited prosperity and comfort.

The response to this appeal last year was very liberal. Make it larger this time.

After dinner on Thanksgiving night quite a number of the townspeople gathered at Pine Inn for the little affair given for the benefit of All Saints church by the ladies. There were recitations by Mr. A. Van Houten and Phyllis Overstreet, a fancy dance by Ruth Pudan, and Miss Ida A. Johnson gave an amusing reading. After this little program, dancing and card-playing were indulged in.

Political Make-up of the U. S. Supreme Court

In all probability President Wilson will be called upon to appoint a number of United States Supreme Court Justices during his coming term. He has already appointed three, all of them Democrats. The likelihood is that he will give the august tribunal a Democratic majority between now and March 4, 1921. If there are no Democrats available, citizens Hughes and Taft are out a public job.

At the present time the court is divided as evenly as it can be between the leading political parties, at five to four. The Republicans are McKenna, Holmes, Day, Van Devanter and Pitney. The Democrats are White (Chief Justice), McReynolds, Brandeis and Clark.

WEEKLY GREETING

The books which help you most are those which make you think most. The hardest way of learning is by easy reading; but a great book, that comes from a great thinker—it is a ship of thought, deep freighted with truth and with beauty. Theodore Parker.

Revise the Patent Laws.

One of the important matters for Congress to consider with care and act on with vigor at the first opportunity is a revision of our present patent laws. A patent is an artificial monopoly, granted for a limited time by Government as a reward for inventive skill which benefits or is supposed to benefit the nation. To fulfill its purpose, it must be easily and quickly secured, must afford complete protection to the inventor when granted, and must be safeguarded so that it cannot be used to discourage invention or deprive the public of valuable discoveries and improvements.

Not one of these conditions is fulfilled by our present laws. The difficulty and delay in the securing of patents are notorious. The inadequate protection given is attested by the interminable lawsuits on the subject, and many devices and improvements are suppressed in order to protect investments already made in inferior methods.

Not Many Here.

Men or women who pay their debts and taxes may be a blessing or a curse to the community. It depends on what else they do. In making this statement it is to be understood that by the word "debt" is meant the ordinary cash obligation which is incurred in the transaction of business. There are those who believe that so long as they are not indebted to their neighbors for goods purchased, or the municipality or the state for the last tax levy, they have discharged their whole duty, and nothing more can be asked of them. But in reality duty to a neighbor is limited only by the ability to do the neighbor good, and duty to the community by the ability to be of service to it. The community in which the prevailing statement is, "What do I get out of it?" is one which does not and cannot prosper.

Fortunately there are only a very limited number of the "what-do-I-get-out-of-it" kind in Carmel, and, fortunately again, some of these, since incorporation, are threatening to leave town.

Work of Local Writer Highly Regarded by Literary Critic

In comment concerning the achievements of our own citizens—neighbors, we might say—it seems always appropriate to quote some one else—an outsider.

Harry Leon Wilson's literary work has certainly found a strong champion in the book editor of the S. F. Chronicle, from which paper the following is "lifted":

Harry Leon Wilson if frankly an entertainer for the hammock or the easy chair. He writes to make fun, and he does it. The whole country laughed over his "Bunker Bean," roared at "Ruggles of Red Gap," and has been exploding periodically with each successive publication of his short stories.

If it were merely a laugh and then done with, Wilson's stuff would hardly warrant extended notice. Fun-makers, and really clever ones, are too common in this age to get into solid bindings. Even Wilson, in spite of what we are going to say about him, is not likely to have more than a passing currency. The very quality that stands out with such high merit in his books is, in the nature of things, a merely contemporary one.

We mean his satire. Harry Leon Wilson's satire on present-day American life, or at least on some phases of it, rises to a very high level. Both the quality and the quantity of it are amazing. Every one of his stories, while apparently written as a satire or consciously intended to be read as such, is a complete satire on one, sometimes several, phases of American life.

The unconsciously quality of it gives it, perhaps, its highest claim to be called art. It has been long since there has appeared a satirist so keen, so accurate, with such bewildering capacity for seeing all at once so many weaknesses and follies of human character, and such an effortless exposition of them. Nothing is strained or labored. There is that highest art of all, an entire absence of conscious art.

Genuine satire, especially if it is dressed with good humor, is a wholesome thing. It is a tonic with effects of sanity. The American public needs to be told some of the things that Wilson, in a wholly pleasant way, has told it. The only thing in the way of a sound effect on the readers is the fact that it is done with so much good humor that the reader who needs it most may not make the application to himself.

The extent of it is amazing. Where did Wilson pick up all this knowledge of people of a good many different kinds and classes? One would like to know more about this man who has observed so accurately so many different types. The man is not common who has had the chance to observe closely and continuously the railroad president and the ranch swamper.

It must already be obvious to even the reader who has not made the acquaintance of Bunker Bean or Ruggles that the writer who can satirize character correctly must first be able to portray it correctly. Wilson's folks are real individuals, far more definitely and consistently drawn than we are accustomed to see in ordinary fiction. There is a touch of caricature in some of them, but that is only the make-up their author lays on them to make them clear at stage distance.

Satire, of course, becomes meaningless to everyone as soon as the causes that produced it pass out of existence. Understanding the satire of "Gulliver's Travels" is a matter of hard labor and the encyclopaedias. The wise reader lets it alone and reads Dean Swift's book for the story alone. Satire alone, therefore, unless based exclusively on the fundamental and permanent facts of human nature, cannot make a literary work endure.

But for the present the keenest enjoyment is to be had from Wilson's pictures of the social life of Red Gap, remembering always that Red Gap, though the author has made it a frontier town just struck by "culture," is not different from other American towns and cities. Nor are the people in it different from their fellow citizens all over the land.

Mrs. Lysander John Pettengill, otherwise "Ma" Pettengill, otherwise "The Mixer," is a splendidly sane, commonsense foil to the usual run of male and female silliness around her. She is a real creation, a fine type of the saving hard sense of America. She gives point to all the author's satire.

A Real Railroader.

Because of the fact that Mr. Louis W. Hill is well known on the Monterey peninsula, maintaining as he does a beautiful summer home near Pebble Beach, the following item, from an Eastern journal, is of interest:

Louis Warren Hill, who has been re-elected president of the Great Northern Railway Company, is a son of James J. Hill, who financed and built this great highway across the Northwest region of the United States. The son was sent East to Yale to be educated, was graduate with the class of '93, and then went back to St. Paul to learn the railroad business "from the ground up." When this had been accomplished, he was put on the directorate, and then, in 1907, was made president to succeed his father. Mr. Hill knows his staff of subordinates as few men in such positions know employees. He is like his father in encouraging civic and economic improvement of the states through which the railway extends. In co-operation with the Department of the Interior at Washington, he is a large factor in developing the national park system of the Northwest. He attends definitely to the business of running a railway, and leaves out Wall street and all speculative phases of railroading.

A merchant relates the following: "For years I could not sleep without turning every hour. Whatever I ate caused gas and sourness. Also had stomach catarrh. Because Adler-i-ka flushes the ENTIRE alimentary tract it relieves ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas and prevents appendicitis. It has QUICK-EST action of anything we ever sold. J. E. Beck.
