The war savings certificate campaign will be inaugurated throughout the country on December 3. It is one of the most vital undertakings of the government since the war began.

In its broadest aspects it contemplates that a hundred million persons shall invest $20 each during the coming twelve months—save it and loan it to the government at interest.

The plan is very simple. Beginning next Monday there will be placed on sale at postoffices and other public places two varieties of stamps—War Savings stamps of the denomination of $5, selling for $4.12, and Thrift stamps, selling at 25 cents.

The purchaser of a War Savings stamp obtains the promise of the government to pay $5 at the end of five years, or on January 1, 1923.

A Thrift stamp purchaser waits until he has acquired sixteen 25-cent stamps, amounting to $4, whereupon he exchanges the card upon which they are pasted at any of the places where the stamps are on sale and receive one of the War Saving stamps upon payment of 12 cents.

The purchaser of a War Savings stamp at $4.12 is given a war-savings certificate, to which may be affixed twenty of the same stamps. This certificate will bear his name and address.

The plan provides that no one may buy more than $100 worth of the War Saving Stamps at one time, and no one is allowed to own over $1000 worth in all.

Those of small or moderate means should embrace this opportunity to assist the government. Even children may purchase the 25-cent stamps.

WEEKLY GREETING

Human sympathy is at the heart of every poetic utterance, whether humble or great; rhythm is its outward and visible, once audible sign; and poetry, from this point of view, would therefore seem to be an adhering element in our life.—Francis B. Gummere.

Road Signs

It is difficult to understand why men and boys should destroy and deface road signs installed for the benefit and protection of the public.

Hundreds of the splendid signs placed along the highways by public and private bodies have been mutilated and removed.

These signs may mean little to the residents of a locality, but they are invaluable to the traveler. A proper sense of decency would dictate that all public property should be respected and protected.

If all citizens would make themselves guardians of the road signs, destruction of them would speedily cease.

The Town Slacker.

From the King City Rustler

There are different kinds of slackers. Those in any kind of business who carry some sort of announcement in their home paper are not slackers. Those who carry none are slackers, for a paper is necessary to the progress of any community, in a thousand ways too numerous to mention.

If no one supported it except subscribers, it could not run. Those who do nothing to support it are reaping benefits, the cost of which their newspaper-supporting neighbors are paying for them. Therefore they are slackers. The less the number of such slackers, the better the paper and the greater the benefits to the community. Don't be a slacker!

Cheer up, brother.

French Waffles.

One quart flour, four tablespoonfuls oil, one and a half pints milk, three eggs, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt. Add the salt and oil to the flour and mix thoroughly. Separate the eggs, add the milk to the yolks, add this to the flour and beat for five minutes. Let them stand 30 minutes, add the baking powder, beat again, fold in the well beaten whites and bake at once. If well made these are thin and crisp. Brush the waffle iron thoroughly with oil.

Soldiers on the March Saving Wounded Trees

Of all the restoration work done in France, I do not know of any more ingenious or more interesting than the doctoring of wounded trees.

The French soldiers are taught first aid to injured trees, and it is necessary, for the retreating Germans show an absolutely fiendish efficiency in ravishing the orchards and forests and shade trees in the villages.

When they had time they would fell the trees, but when the close pursuit of the allies forbade this, they set their kultur to work to girdle the trunks, cutting off a circle of bark in such fashion as to kill in a few days a fruit tree which might have been a half century attaining its productiveness.

But the French armies, hard on their tracks, would bind up the wounds—first with a special grafting cement, and, when the supply of that gave out, with tar, and finally with loamy clay. Red Cross ambulance drivers and stretcher-carriers assisted, and often bandages from their store were used. Lately it has been found that moss twisted and tied about the dressed wound was as effective as the bandage.

These are simple operations. It is when the tree is cut down that French resourcefulness is really put to it. However, they trim the stump in a way to conserve the sap, preventing the death of the roots, and then with grafting paste till the cut down tree has budded from the sap in it. Then the budding branches are cut off and grafted into the stump, and all over the evacuated regions these rescued stumps are seen with their crowns of budding grafted boughs.

It is rather touching to think of this work of restoration being done by French soldiers who will probably never see those particular orchards again. Soldiers pause in their hurried marches to bring to life again fields of grain which the Germans have sought to ruin by dragging harrows over them—pause to restore, and then sweep on. But it is all for France, and maybe, they reflect, somebody is doing the same for their own fields at home.—Eleanor Simmons in World Outlook.

Dr. McNaught Visits and Talks

Last week's visit here of Mrs. Margaret S. McNaught, State Commissioner of Elementary Education, has resulted in a revival of interest in school affairs. Trustees, teachers, parents, teachers, and pupils, evinced much genuine interest in the gifted lady's advisory talks.

The splendid address at the Methodist church, on Wednesday evening, on social welfare work,

McNAUGHTISMS

"You live in one of the garden spots of the world."

"All you children must help to win this war. Join the Junior Red Cross."

"A Parent-Teacher Club is essential in every community."

was worthy a much larger audience.

Mrs. McNaught is charmed with Carmel and its splendid school. Together with County Superintendent George Schultzbery, our school was visited and inspected on Thursday morning.

Speaking to the children, Mrs. McNaught said:

"I can see by your happy, intelligent faces that you are well cared for by your trustees and well instructed by your teachers."

Manzanita Club Entertains Royally

Through the efforts of an efficient and resourceful committee, consisting of Walter M. Basham, Fred Leidig and Thomas B. Reardon, and the hearty cooperation of Mrs. F. Pierce and Miss Roberta Deal, the Manzanita Club of Carmel has the honor of having given the first semi-public social affair in the unique and attractive Highlands Inn since its opening.

On Saturday evening last club-members, their wives, and friends, to the number of sixty, motored down to the place that one man calls "My Dream Come True," to attend a supper dance given by Carmel's well-known social organization.

To splendid music, furnished by the local orchestra, most everyone danced to their hearts' content. Those who did not dance played cards.

At 11 o'clock the merry-makers adjourned to the splendid dining-room to partake of a course supper. The intervals between the courses were so timed as to permit of dancing in between.

It was a beautiful moonlight night, ideal, not only for motoring, but for the splendid view from the Inn of the silvered sea and the silhouetted rocks and trees.

The First Thanksgiving Day

Children, do you know the story Of the first Thanksgiving Day, Founded by our Pilgrim Fathers In that time so far away?

They had given for religion Wealth and comfort, -yes, and more,

Left their homes and friends, and kindred

For a bleak and distant shore.

On New England's rugged headlands,

Now where peaceful Plymouth lies,

There they built their rough log cabins,

'Neath the cold, forbidding skies

And too often, e'en the bravest

Felt his blood run cold with dread.

Lest the wild and savage red man

Burn the roof above his head.

Want and sickness, death and sorrow,

Met their eyes on every hand,

And before the springtime reached them,

They had buried half their band.

But their noble, brave endurance

Was not exercised in vain;

Summer brought them brighter prospects,

Reaping seed and waving grain.

And the patient Pilgrim mothers,

As the harvest time drew near,

Looked with happy, thankful faces

At the full corn in the ear.

So the Govern'r, William Bradford,

In the gladness of his heart,

To praise God for all his mercies,

Set a special day apart.

That was in the autumn, children,

Sixteen hundred twenty-one;

Scarce a year from when they,

And the colony began.

And now, when in late November,

Our Thanksgiving feast is spread

'Tis the same time-honored custom

Of those Pilgrims, long since dead.

From a Soldier's Letter

The following extracts are taken from a letter received by Dr. and Mrs. C. A. McCollum from a relative at Camp Green, North Carolina:

"You can well imagine it is a beastly, lonely life, seeing practically nothing but khaki-clad men all week long. And so we all wait patiently until the mail comes. . . You can't write too often."

"As to the fellows: For the most part they are jovial, care-free—all try to keep a cheerful front. Some days it is pretty hard, though. It seems we must see some one from home—that we cannot stand it any longer."

"The Y.M.C.A. is the greatest organization in the camp. That may be putting it pretty strong, but it is so."

"You remember I said Sunday was a 'perfect day with a perfect ending.' The ending—I had two letters from —."
