La Playa News Notes

Reservations are already made for a large body of Chicago students to spend six weeks at La Playa. They arrive in June, under instruction of a leading professor of the University of Chicago.

Should our plans carry, there will be a display during July and August of model gowns and hats from an exclusive New York shop. An instructor in tatting, embroidery and knitting is contemplated. Also a small shop for Chinese furniture, china and bric-a-brac.

To hear Miss Borden recite "Mr. Donohue" and "Mr. Hoover" is something to remember.

A rummage sale will be featured. Cards asking departing guests to leave some garment will be posted in each room.

A large packing box, containing coats, skirts, shoes, gloves, underwear, and stockings, which have accumulated at La Playa, was dispatched to the French Society in Los Angeles, where these garments are assorted, matched up, and sent "over."

Mr. and Mrs. Witherbee, well known in Carmel, are now at Menlo Park. Since August Mr. Witherbee has been stationed at Camp Fremont as associate secretary of the army Y.M.C.A.

A postal received from Margaret Sherwood, a Wellesley professor, author of "The Worn Doorstep," says: "We are delighted that you are now the owner of beautiful La Playa. We, too, wish that we might own a wee bit of enchanting Carmel, of which we often think with longing."

Miss Taft and Miss Wilson will spend Christmas with the family in Oakland, returning to finish their visit here.

Lieut. C. R. Barney, here with his bride, has added much to the enjoyment of our fireside evenings. We all look forward to the gathering of our big family for after-dinner readings and talks.

Mr. and Mrs. Byrd will sail the 5th of January for China, where Mr. Byrd has business interests. They are here on their honeymoon.

Recent arrivals:
San Francisco—Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Byrd.
Oakland—Dr. Katherine McClurg
Piedmont—Jack McClurg.
Berkeley—Laura M. Rowell, Prof. L. Ehrlich, Prof. J. Lowenberg,
Seattle—Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Rawn
Santa Barbara—Helen M. Baker,
Mrs. Harold P. Watres.

Mrs. E. J. Foster, who has been in Oakland visiting her daughter, will soon return to her much-loved Casa.

H. C. Pudan returned to the city Tuesday evening, after spending several days with his family here.

Pebble Beach Lodge Desroyed by Fire

At 1:30 a.m. yesterday the people living in the vicinity of the picturesque lodge at Pebble Beach were aroused by the cry of "Fire! Fire!"

Those who responded found the massive, high-ceilinged lodge building enveloped in flames. The building is a total loss.

It is not known how or where the fire started, but it is probable the blaze originated in kitchen, where a fire had been left when the place was closed for the night. A strong wind was blowing at the time.

There was no one injured. The Monterey and Del Monte fire departments arrived on the scene too late to save the property, but were most efficient in preventing the fire's spread to buildings and pine forest close by.

Del Monte Forest Lodge, as it has recently become known, was erected by the Pacific Improvement Company in 1908, and for the past five years has been under the management of Robert J. McCabe.

A spectator of the fire relates that he saw thousands of rats scurrying from the burning structure.

WEEKLY GREETING

The grand security of the gifts of God is that it is God who gives them. The Giver lives forever, and is always at hand. I do not think He will give us any other security, and I am sure we can have none so strong.—Elizabeth Charles.

Airplanes After the War

It is not known how far the commercial development of the airplane would have proceeded by now if the work of inventors and builders had not been concentrated on military demands.

Some conception of what might have been accomplished may be had from instances of us to which the air ship has been put as a carrier.

For example, the Italians send supplies to Sardinia, and the French to Corsica, by air, to escape the submarine peril. Machines carrying 10 to 20 person, with baggage, travel from London to Rome.

These things afford an idea of what the possibilities are for air traffic when men turn to constructive efforts in aviation.

Our own government has begun to look forward in this matter by the creation of an aerial transport committee. Not long ago it was announced the air mail routes would be established between the islands off the American coast.

We shall see at the end of the war some rapid strides in the commercial development of the airplane.

Report It

The Red Cross is continually being made the victim of malicious slanders of numerous varieties.

Inasmuch as the national organization, division organization or any chapter have been able to verify a single derogatory report, it must be assumed that the libels are perpetrated as a part of the propaganda of the enemy.

Those hearing such stories will confer a favor on the Red Cross and render a patriotic service by reporting the story and the name of the teller.

A Fish Story

Our efficient sanitary inspector, Henry P. Larouette, is thinking seriously of abandoning reel, pole and line in his future fishing excursions.

While he and the family were spending last Sunday at Moss Landing crabbing (nothing unusual for Henry), he landed a 25-pound cod in his crab net. Henry is now working on a scheme to prevent the net becoming entangled in the kelp; when he arrives at the solution, kelp cod will get scarce in this vicinity.

The local postmaster and his able assistant, Miss Stella Vincent are to be commended for their efficient handling of the heavy outgoing and incoming Christmas mail. It was never done better.

Our Weekly Recipe

Sweet Potato Pie

Boil the potatoes until thoroughly done, then peel and mash them through a colander. To one pie allow 1 cup of potato, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon ginger, 2 cups milk, and enough sugar to sweeten to taste. Beat the eggs until light, and then beat them into the potatoes, together with the salt and ginger. Add the milk, and beat again until all ingredients are blended. Grate nutmeg over the top just before putting pie in oven. Should be baked with under crust only.

Patterson Pictures

The exhibition of Ambrose Patterson's paintings at the Blue Bird is attracting a large number of visitors.

It is interesting to know that this talented artist is a compatriot of Madam Melba, through whose interest and influence Patterson became a pupil of Sargent.

Critics who have seen the Honolulu pictures are enthusiastic in their praise.

Mail Order Concerns Do Not Help Your Community

Interesting Letter From Herbert Hand

A South American Port,
November 19, 1917.

Mr. W. L. Overstreet,
Editor, Carmel Pine Cone.

My dear sir:

I wrote you not long ago that as soon as the order allowing us to write of our trip was posted I would send you an account of it.

We left San Diego, California, at 4 p.m., May 7, accompanied by the South Dakota, Pueblo, and Frederick, and stood south, making 18 knots. Met collier Nanshan on May 10, and sent mail back to the States by her. Met strange vessel on May 11 and dispatched the Frederick to run her down and investigate; nothing unusual—commercial vessel.

The Pueblo broke battle formation on May 12 and proceeded ahead to Panama City. The other vessels changed their course and arrived at San Jose del Sur, Guatemala, on May 13. The Admiral and staff went ashore and paid respects to Guatemala's President the following day. We departed for Balboa, Canal Zone on May 17 and arrived there on the 20th.

The Pittsburgh anchored inside the Canal; the other ships tied up at the docks. Left Balboa and Panama City on the 24th and arrived at Cristobal and Colon on the same day.

The trip through the Canal was interesting. We took on coal by modern machinery, and left Colon for somewhere, and reached Bahia, Brazil, June 14 (cross the line June 10) and had a big time. Left Bahia on June 20, and reached Rio de Janeiro on the 22d. Many salutes were fired in welcome to us. Rio is a beautiful city; there was a splendid parade there on July Fourth, four nations being represented.

We departed for Montevideo, Uruguay, on July 10. We came inside amidst the whistling of many tugs and thousands of cheers from thousands of throats—and hearts. They cheered and cheered us until we cut loose and cheered them in return. Never was a nation more wonderfully received than we were; had a grand time. Left for Buenos Aires on July 23, arriving next day; big crowd; no welcome; fine time later made up for it—dancing, picnics, rides, etc. Left July 21 and made our way down the River De Plata to the open sea.

I have had to omit much that would be of interest. We're at war; you understand.

I remain as ever,

The wet season, the season of slippery roads and the danger of "skidding," with its more or less fatal results, is upon us.

To avoid "skidding," especially when going down hill, an official of the California Automobile Association, advises as follows:

Shift down to low or intermediate at top of grade and shut off power.
