Long and Useful Life Come to an End

At Fruitvale, Alameda County, last Monday, Mrs. Ruthanna Wellman, mother of Mrs. George F. Beardsley, passed away, following a long illness. She was born in Bethany, New York, and was 84 years of age.

Mrs. Wellman was a pioneer Californian, having resided on Rincon Hill, San Francisco, when that section was the home district of a considerable number of early California men of wealth. For more than forty-four years she has made her home in Fruitvale.

The funeral took place yesterday morning from the First Congregational Church, Oakland, in which church the deceased had been a member and worker for many years.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Rules For Long Life.

There is no panacea that will bring long life to every user. "What is one man's meat is another man's poison." But a few rules are applicable to every one: Be moderate in everything. Excess in eating, in drinking, in anything, tends to bring on old age.

Be faithful in your exercise and be sure to choose an exercise that is helpful to you.

Stand and sit erect and use your lungs.

Keep your teeth and gums and throat clean. The mouth is the principal port of entry for undesirable immigrant micro-organisms.

Be careful to maintain the bowel functions. The digestive tract is a favorite abiding place for hordes of marauding bacteria.

Have your body occasionally examined. Hawthorne Daniel in World's Work.

An Imaginary Interview.

"Did you say that the times are out of joint?"

"Yes," replied Hamlet. "You see, I have to be content with old time phraseology. If I could have used modern terms I should have said that our engine is missing or that we're running on a flat tire." Washington Star.

The Word Umbrella.

The English word umbrella is very like the Latin, coming through the Italian "ombrella," or "little shade." The French, German, Spanish and others give it a distinctive name, such as "parapluie," "regenschirm" and "paraguas."

"Umbrella" and "parasol" are etymologically precisely the same thing, but custom has given them the distinctions that we understand today.

Poison Upon Their Cheeks.

Professor M. P. Philbrick of the University of Washington told the Washington State Philological society that women of the seventeenth century powdered their cheeks with corrosive sublimate (dichloride of mercury) and with white lead. And they perfumed their gloves with ambergris.

WEEKLY GREETING

For a nation to make peace only because it is tired of war, and, as it were, in order just to take breath, is in direct subversion of the end and object of the war which was its sole justification. 'Tis like a poor way-sore fool traveler getting up behind a coach that is going the contrary way to his.—Coleridge.

The Prerequisites of Good Citizenship

Poorly enlightened refugees from other countries cannot be expected to drift into good citizenship. A definite program in citizenship should be handed every newcomer. Those who come to make a home in this country must be made to realize that they are to become all-American.

They should be obliged to do their American business in the language of America. They should understand that their children must attend the public schools, that whatever periodicals they read will be printed in the American language. It must be thoroughly understood that if necessary their children are to defend with their lives the country of their adoption.

Merit's Inevitable Reward

Just a little more than a hundred years have elapsed since Keats' first volume of poems were published, the dominant note of which was one of delight, freedom from convention, of joy in the contemplation of the beauties of nature and human friendship, and the consciousness of the faculty of communicating his feelings.

If during his short career Keats was appreciated by only by a small circle of friends, his fame has grown much with the years, and the homage now paid him by scholars and critics is in pleasant contrast to the abuse rained upon him by the magazines of his day.

Our Weekly Recipe

Stuffed Beefsteak

Take a slice of round steak one inch thick and spread it with such dressing as is used to stuff fowl. Then roll the meat and fasten securely. Place in a kettle in small quantity of boiling water; allow it to simmer two hours, turning and basting often. When quite done, thicken the water in which meat was boiled, add seasoning, and pour over meat.

We Concur

Monterey, according to the Cypress-American, is getting really waked up over the saloon prospect in connection with the Presidio. If the city had the backbone to cut out the saloons in Monterey there will be a good prospect of the Presidio of Monterey being a post of importance instead of one of little consequence—a post of tens of thousands instead of a few hundred, or less. Those who rule Monterey—which seem to be the saloons—appear to love a bunch of saloon keepers much more than an army of Uncle Sam's best men. The saloon-keepers seem to have Monterey where it "dasn't wiggle." We are glad to know the press of the historic old town is against them.—Pacific Grove Review.

HOW COMMON WORDS ARE MISUSED.

No solecisms are more frequent than those which consist in the common misuse of "shall" and "will." A person who has not been trained to make the proper distinction between "shall" and "will," "should" and "would," never can be sure of using them correctly, but he will make few mistakes if he fixes firmly in his mind that I (or we) shall, you will, he (or they) will, express simple futurity and that I (or we) will, you shall, he (or they) shall, imply volition on the part of the speaker. Some writers hold that "shall" was the original form of the future and that whenever courtesy permits "shall" is to be preferred to "will." But at all events, the doctrine of courtesy furnishes a rough and ready rule for choice between the two.

"Should" and "would" follow the same rules as "shall" and "will," but they have, in addition, certain meanings peculiarly their own. "Should" is sometimes used in its original sense as "ought," as in "You should not do that;" sometimes in a conditional sense, as in "Should you ask me about that," and after "lest," as in "He fled lest he should be imprisoned." "Would" is sometimes used to signify habitual action, as in "The squire would sometimes fall asleep in the most pathetic part of the sermon."

FOR MEN AT THE FRONT.

LORD GOD of hosts, whose mighty hand
Dominion holds on sea and land,
In peace and war thy will we see
Shaping the larger liberty.
Nations may rise and nations fall,
Thy changeless purposes rules them all.

When death flies swift on wave or field,
Be thou a sure defense and shield!
Console and succor those who fall
And help and hearten each and all!
Oh, hear a people's prayers for those
Who fearless face their country's foes!

For those who weak and broken lie,
In weariness and agony,
Great Healer, to their beds of pain
Come, touch and make them whole again.
Oh, hear a people's prayers and bless
Thy servants in their hour of stress!
—John Oxenham

Richter's Conducting.

It is difficult to define just what differentiates a good conductor from a mere time beater, but a story that is told of Richter may help indirectly. In the prelude to "Tristan and Isolde" occurs a beautiful passage for the oboe, which rises, swells and dies away to a pianissimo most effectively. To indicate the quality of the playing which he wanted from this instrument, Richter, beating the time with his right hand, placed his left hand over his heart, and the oboe player at once responded to a direction all inclusive in its simplicity and intelligibility.

Horse Sense.

If you work for a man, in heaven's name work for him. If he pays wages that supply you your bread and butter, work for him, speak well of him, think well of him, stand by him and stand by the institution he represents. I think if I worked for a man I would work for him. I would not work for him a part of his time, but all of his time. I would give an undivided service or none. If put to a pinch an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you vilify, condemn and eternally disparage, why, resign your position and when you are outside roar to your heart's content. But, I pray you, so long as you are a part of an institution, do not condemn it. Not that you will injure the institution—not that—but when you disparage the concern of which you are a part you disparage yourself.—Elbert Hubbard.

Colony of Cousins.

In Catlin bay, close to the great rock of Gibraltar, there is a colony so unique that it stands out almost as a tribe distinct in itself. Many generations ago, during a storm, a fleet of Genoese fishermen put into the sheltered spot and so escaped the fury of the sea. In the boats, so history has it, were many women, and they became so enamored of the spot that huts were built and they remained. Hundreds of years have passed, and the little tribe still lingers on. It is a colony of cousins, dwelling apart in the shadow of a great rock and going down to the sea in ships to earn a hard won livelihood.

All Pleased.

A candidate for parliamentary honors called upon a Scottish miner and met with a hearty reception and assurance of his vote. After his departure the candidate of the opposite party appeared on the scene and received the miner's reply, "Oh, aye, sir; I'll vote for ye." After he had gone the miner's wife remonstrated with her beloved against such behavior. "Never you mind, lassie. Ye see it's like this twa already gone awa' pleased, and when I gang tae gie ma vote I'll please mysel', and there will be three o' us that's pleased."—London Mail.

Pioneer Resident Passes Away

John P. Staples, affectionately known here for many years as "Uncle John," passed away last Thursday in San Francisco, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frances Towle.

Mr. Staples came to Carmel in 1903, to make his home here with Mrs. Potter, his sister, and remained a local resident until November, 1916. Only recently he visited here for two weeks, being a guest at the home of his niece, Mrs. J. F. Devendorf.

The deceased, who a short time ago reached his eighty fifth year, was a native of New York, and for a time engaged in mining. At the outbreak of the war between the States he enlisted in the Northern arm, and served throughout the conflict. He was a Christian gentleman and a good citizen.

The funeral and interment took place at San Jose on Monday. A number of Carmel people were in attendance.

SONG OF A THOUSAND YEARS

LIFT up your eyes, desponding freemen!
Flung to the winds your needless years.
He who unfurled your beauteous banner
Says it shall wave a thousand years

Chorus.

"A thousand years," my own Columbia!
'Tis the glad day so long foretold.
'Tis the glad morn whose early twilight
Washington saw in times of old.

What if the clouds, one little moment,
Hide the blue sky where morn appears,
When the bright sun that tints them crimson
Rises to shine a thousand years.

Envious foes, beyond the ocean,
Little we heed your threat'ning sneers,
Little will they—our children's children—
When you are gone a thousand years

Haste thee along, thou glorious noonday!
Oh, for the eyes of ancient seers!
Oh, for the faith of him who reckons
Each of his days a thousand years!

—Henry C. Work.
