All Americans Can Serve

Every man, woman and child in this country, who wants to serve the country, can serve it and serve it in a very simple and effective way, says Secretary McAdoo.

That service is to lend your money to the government. Every 25 cents loaned to the government is a help at this time and practically every man, woman and child, by making some trifling sacrifice, some denial of a pleasure, or giving up some indulgence, can render the government that support.

Moving Folks Will Be Here Several Weeks

Attracted by the scenic beauty of Carmel and the surrounding country, the Yorke Film Corporation, of which Harold Lockwood is the star, has arrived here for the purpose of putting on the exterior scenes of Mr. Lockwood's newly chosen starring vehicle, "A King in Khaki," a romantic drama based on Henry Kitchell Webster's novel of that name.

A setting representing a village street in the semi-tropics, which is the locale of the story, is being constructed on the golf links near Pebble Beach. Other important scenes will be photographed on the Carmel beach.

More than a score of people compose the party, most of whom are quartered at Pine Inn. The com-

Sunset School Graduating Exercises

Interesting exercises marked the graduation of the class of 1918 at Sunset School last Friday morning. The program included singing, music, the reading of a clever class prophecy by Janette Howard, and addresses by Rev. Stephen C. Thomas and W. L. Overstreet.

Mr. Thomas addressed his remarks principally to the graduating class, laying particular stress upon the need of efficiency in whatever calling may be followed.

School Trustee Overstreet urged the formation of a parent-teachers club in this district, and asked that every pupil of the school during the vacation do something in the way of war work. In concluding his remarks, Mr. Overstreet said to the graduating class, "I trust that matters will so shape themselves that you may later say, 'I graduated from Sunset School the year Hindenburg surrendered to General Pershing.'"

The graduates are: Marvan Hopper, Janette Howard, Helen Hiliard, Isabel Weaver, Theodore Criley.

Junior Red Cross Gives Pleasing Affair

Over fifty dollars was obtained for war work by last Friday evening's entertainment given by the Junior Red Cross organization connected with the local public school.

Well coached by their teachers and Mrs. Sydney Yard, the pupils gave a very pleasing entertainment. Little Phyllis Carrington's first public appearance was a decided success.

When the children had completed their program, several members of the Harold Lockwood company of moving picture actors entertained the audience with recitations, stories and music, which, with the dancing that followed, rounded out a very pleasant affair.

WEEKLY GREETING

Everyone wants to have dealings with a man who likes his work well enough to get excited about it. Everyone has a chance to fail except the man with enthusiasm; he cannot fail.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS

The difference between the patriotic American housewife and the one who is indifferent or disloyal is measured by the amount of wheat flour in her kitchen.

As the President in his Day of Prayer proclamation specifically requests that we fast as well as pray, would it not be well for all of us to at least one meal today or tomorrow?

Two hundred men, woman and children, singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" when the flag was thrown on the local moving-picture screen last Saturday night was an inspiring occurrence. Patriotic Carmel!

That $150,000,000 for the Red Cross should make German Kaiser willie squirm; not so much because of the vast collection of money as by the sentiment that the giving of such an amount represents.

We understand that the Trustees are going to make temporary repairs on Ocean Avenue. Well, it's about time something were accomplished.

The Forest Theatre Productions

Rehearsals are under way for the annual productions of the Forest Theatre Society, July 3, 4, 5 and 6

Arthur Vachell and Daniel W. Willard are at work arranging the stage and the scenic features for "Pygmalion and Galatea" and "Alice in Wonderland."

Miss Katharine Cooke, assistant producer of Perry Newberry's arrangement of Lewis Carroll's fantastic story of childhood's Never-Never Country, is hard at the task of drilling the children who will impersonate the bizarre creatures of Lewis Carroll's whimsical brain. "Alice in Wonderland" was presented for the first time in Carmel in the summer of 1912, and was regarded as the most successful of the Forest Theatre Society's children's plays. With a few exceptions, the cast, which calls for about thirty-two speaking parts, in addition to choruses and supernumeraries, will be in entirely new hands.

The grown up production, so to speak—to differentiate it from the children's play—will be William S. Gilbert's mythological comedy in three acts, "Pygmalion and Galatea." This is what may be termed in a general sense a fairy play—but a fairy play with a difference, as in the case of James M. Barrie's dramatic conceits.

One of the simplest and most customary means of ridiculing human insitutions is to test their effect on unsophisticated natures. Fairy machinery lends itself readily to such a purpose. In a world in which nothing can be pronounced impossible or illogical, since the law of sequence is abrogated, the wildest experiments are permissible. In his fairy dramas, accordingly, Mr. Gilbert has done laborately what was accomplished by Voltaire in more than one of his tales, and notably in his L'Ingenu.

Galatea—who from a statue is converted into a woman, and who, in a candid and ingenious search after truth, finds nothing around her but deceit, insincerity and sham—is a feminine counterpart to Huron of Voltaire. In his employment of these means, however, Mr. Gilbert has laid upon them a heavier duty.

In "Pygmalion and Galatea" the author has blended sadness with mirth, and, by a humanizing touch, has presented his heroine as sickened with the frivolities and follies around her, and seeking again the repose of marble, from which she had been roused.

In this play, therefore, Gilbert is satirist, humorist, poet and dramatist. It forms one of the most important contributions to fairy literature that has been supplied by any dramatist, or, indeed, any writer, since the beginning of the seventeenth century.

And now for the "difference" between the fairy plays of Gilbert and of other writers. His plays are only so far concerned with the fairies that his scene is Fairy Land. His characters are thoroughly human; and it is only by being subject to the operations of charms and talismans that they are distinguishable from ordinary mortals.

"Pygmalion and Galatea" will be produced under the direction of John Northern Hilliard, and he and the assistant producer, Miss Katharine Cooke, will be responsible for "Alice in Wonderland."

It is important to announce that owing to the present daylight saving law, the plays this year will begin about an hour later than at the customary time.

Carmel "Over the Top" in Red Cross Drive

Again, as last year, the generous people of Carmel have more than met their obligation. Carmel, according to per capita computation, has done better in the drive for Red Cross funds than many other communities.

Assuming that there are 600 persons residing here at the present time, and knowing that $2700 has been collected, it will be seen that over four dollars each has been contributed by every man, woman and child in Carmel.

Many made real sacrifices to swell the amount. Every man employed by contractor M. J. Murphy contributed a day's pay. Several doubled the amount they gave last year. The showing is particularly good when we consider that out-laying sections in which funds were collected last year were this year included in another district.

Only one person, able to do so, refused to contribute.

At All Saints at 9 and at the Methodist church at 11 this morning memorial services will be held.

For the splendid support of my candidacy for City Trustee at the recent election, I desire to express my thanks.

OFFICIAL FOOD NEWS

Issued by
U. S. Food Administration
for California
RALPH P. MERRITT, Commissioner

A ship, built in California, will sail for Europe shortly carrying the wheat flour saved by the people of this state. She will be loaded with California's excess supply.

The Food Administration wishes to impress upon everyone the vital necessity for saving every ounce of wheat flour. Every bit thus saved will be sent directly to the allies. Furthermore the Food Administration has arranged to handle flour now in the hands of individuals who may wish to contribute it to democracy's cause.

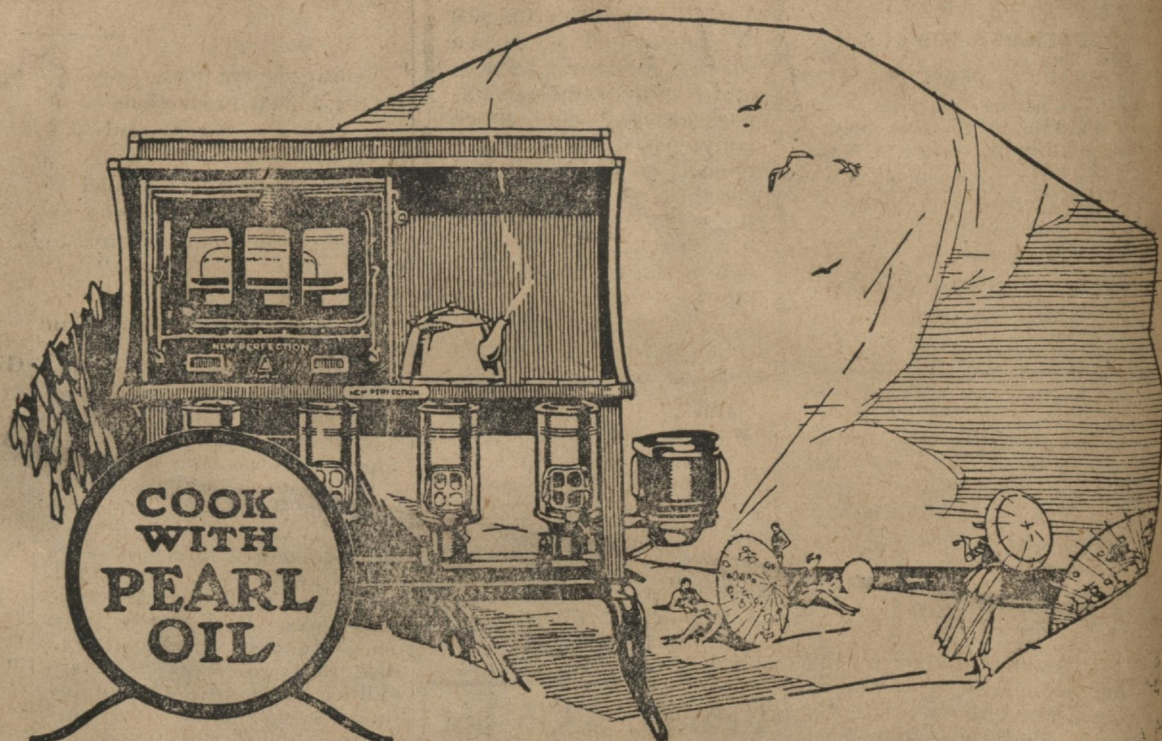

Every individual who wishes to turn flour into the Food Administration may do so by getting in touch with the local food administrator who will tell them what to do. No flour will be accepted unless it is in the original package and has not been opened. The reason for this is the great danger of loss in handling loose flour. All flour thus turned in will be paid for at a fair price.

Each household now has a chance to directly contribute to the hungry people of Europe.

Every restaurant and public eating house in California that serves bread to customers unless the customer specifically requests it, is breaking the law and faces a penalty of having to close its place of business. The Food Administration regulations are very simple and very specific. No hotel, or public eating house, can ask a customer if he, or she, wishes bread, nor can they serve it to anyone unless it is specifically and voluntarily requested by the patron. In no case may more than two ordinary slices of bread be served to any one person at any meal. Where sandwiches are desired only two slices of bread may be served except in the case of a lunch to be eaten outside the restaurant where the full two ounce allowance of wheat products per meal per person may be used. This means that two sandwiches, each having two slices of bread, may be used. In order that this rule may be rigidly enforced Samuel Pond, of the Food Administration, will immediately begin a flying trip throughout the state, trying cases and sentencing those convicted. Pond will investigate dozens of cities in the state and violators of this rule will be heavily penalized.

On Sunday, June 2, practically every church in California will be the scene of a food conservation sermon. Rev. D. Chas. Gardner, chaplain of Stanford University, is now perfecting an organization and urges all ministers of every denomination to immediately get in touch with him for information and other data to be used in the preparation of such sermons. Dr. Gardner may be reached at the offices of the U. S. Food Administration, 417 Market Street, San Francisco.

All roads of "service" lead to STANFORD.

The Harrison Memorial

After many months in transit from Italy, securely cased and packed, the Wm. Greer Harrison marble fountain, with which the members of the Olympic Club of San Francisco will honor the memory of their many times president, has reached Carmel. It arrived by motor truck from San Francisco last Saturday morning. There is not a break or blemish on the two tons of beautifully carved white marble.

The memorial will be erected as soon as a suitable site is agreed upon. Several sites have been proposed. Two places on Ocean Avenue are advocated: a place near the gateway to the Forest Theatre is suggested also, and still others would erect it on a high knoll overlooking the ocean.

The matter will probably be decided upon by a committee composed of members of the Olympic Club, the city Board of Trustees, the Arts and Crafts Club, the Manzanita Club, and the Forest Theatre Society.
