Rag dolls are as old as the hills and legs, toy dogs, rocking horses and a host of other things that bring de-light to the children on Christmas Recent excavations in the ruins ancient Rome, Greece and Egypt have placed the British museum in possession of an interesting assortment of these relics of early Christian days, some of which may possibly have been given to the children of the fol-lowers of Christ at a time when the observation of Christmas day was an innovation after innovation. In the nursery of a newly excavated house at Behnesa, Egypt, a fairly well preserved rag doll was found with arms and legs still intact and painted face. The doll is by no means a beau-ty and does not compare with the Christmas dolls of today, but neverthe-less it must have brought joy to a lit-tle girl's heart nearly 2,000 years ago. The jointed dolls of long ago were made to sit down, stand up and move their arms, but they didn't close their eyes or squeak "mamma." Among the Only Practical Hatter eyes or squeak "mamma." Among the toy dogs, horses and donkeys are some made of stone and baked clay and others carved out of wood,

USE OF EVERGREENS.

The use of evergreens at Christmas time is older than the Christmas tree, the Christians seeming to have copied it from their pagan ancestors. In a very old book we find this reference to the use of evergreens at Christmas time: "Against the feast of Christ-mas every man's house, as also their parish churches, were decked with holme, ivy, bayes, and whatsoever the season of the year afforded to be green. The conduits and standards of the streets were likewise garnished; among which I read that in the year 1414, by tempesi of thunder and lightning, toward the morning of Can-dlemas day, at the Leadenhall, in Cornhill, a standard of tree, being set up in the midst of the pavement, fast in the ground, nailed full of holme and ivy, for disport of Christmas to the In the ground, nailed full of holme and ivy, for disport of Christmas to the people, was torn up and cast down by the malignant spirit (as was thought), and the stones of the pavement all about were cast in the streets and into divers houses, so that the people were sore aghast at the great tempest."

Charity at Christmas.

Charity at Christmas. There can be no holier sentiment at-tached to a gift on Christmas day than charity, for charity combines all that is good and tender in human ideal, impulse and emotion. There is a double joy in charity, for it blesses two. It not only gives happiness in the act ftself, but it quickens and de-velops, for all after life, pure, pre-clous qualities of mind and heart that are a well-spring of peace. Charity are a well-spring of peace. Charity comes nearer to spanning the immeasurable space between the sin of this world and the holiness of heaven than any other blessing that mankind knows. An ideal Christmas which would really mean genuine good will among men is one in which none should be cold, hungry, shelterless or friendless —one in which they who have would think first of them who have not.— Christian Herald. Christian Herald.

Alexandria, Va., is a thriving little southern city with a historic back-ground. The city can never decide of which it should be proudest—its prosperous present or historic past. As a rule it divides its pride equally between them. Several times it has been given an opportunity to become part of the District of Columbia and proudly refused. proudly refused.

Alexandrians will show you with equal pride their busy shipyards and harbor and then escort you to one of their ancient landmarks, such as Christ church or the Carlyle house. Christ church is sacred to the memory of the south's two greatest heroes, Washington and Lee. The Washington and Lee pews in the church are side and Lee pews in the church are side by side, their names marked by silver plates. Twin mural tablets on the church's wall are inscribed to their memory. The chancel rall is the one before which ther head the church's wall are inscribed to one memory. The chancel rall is the one before which they knelt, the tablets of the Lord's prayer and Apostle's Creed were there in Washington's time. In the vestry room relics of the heroes are preserved—the record of their pur-chase of their pews, the Bible and the long handled purse used in Washing-ton's time for the offerings. The congress of Alexandria met in

The congress of Alexandria met in the old Carlyle house, over twenty years before the battle of Lexington was fought. It was the first protest against "taxation without representa-tion" held in Virginia. It was in this same old mansion that the Braddock expedition was decided upon. Wash-ington was a frequent visitor to the house. His diary has often the words: house. His dlary has often the words: "Lodg'd at Col. Carlyle's."

OLD LAW ON STATUTE BOOKS

If British Judges Were Guided by It There Would Be Some Confusion in the "Island Empire."

Many curious acts of parliament still remain on the statute book, re-marks the London Daily Mail. Every little while these appear in the courts, but as the British judges decide cases more by the public interest than by the law they cause very little trouble. Three acts have been quoted this week. One referred to an act of George II., which allowed the land-ord to charge a tenant he wished to leave his premises double rent. The plaintiff claimed, but lost his case.

case, Another was a claim by the admir-alty for freight on bullion carried from South Africa on a warship. This claim was decided in favor of the bankers, who got their freight free owing to an act that was passed in owing to an act that was passed in 1819 for the purpose of stopping the abuse of the privilege of conveying bullion in king's ships by the com-mercial community.

An act that is still enforced is one of James I., dated 1424, a Scottish statute. It reads:

"If any mine of gold or silver be found in any lord's lands of the realm and it may be proved that three halfthe pound of lead, the lords of par-liament consent that such mine may be the king's, as is usual of other realms."
