The Week's Seasonable Events

Never before such a basy season of Christmas festivals in Carmel. The first affair occurred last Friday afternoon when the pupils and teachers of Sunset School ex-changed gifts and held appropriate exercises ate exercises. On Saturday evening after the movie show the members of the Manzanita Club and their friends made merry. Perry Newberry was Santa Claus and overlooked no one in the distribution of gifts. The Methodist Church and Sun-day School celebrated on Sunday morning and afternoon, both ren-dering interesting programs. Pine Inn was the scene of a bril-liant dance on Monday evening, given by the ladies of St. Anne's Guild, by the courtesy of Colonel and Mrs. George S. Terry. The carol surgers were abroad last night heralding the advent of the Prince of Peace. This morning there will be two Christmas services at All Saints Church—at 8 and 11 o'clock, at both of which holy communion will be celebrated. And tonight there will gather at Pine Inn those who will partake of On Saturday evening after the

Christmas Morning يو يو يو By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Western Newspaper Union

HRISTMAS comes but once a year, Christmas comes but once a comes but once a year," shouted the children as they hurried down stairs on Christmas morning. Their daddy and mother fol-lowed and they sang too, "Christmas comes but once a year !" From the stairs they could see the library with the fire just started. There was a big tree all trimmed! And under and around it there were just the things they all had been waiting for, and a lot of other things they had never expected.

Other things they had never expected. Oh, how beautiful it was. It looked to the children as if it couldn't be real and it seemed to them as if they must be dreaming—as if all this won-derful room, filled with presents and stockings and everything else that was fine, could not be real after all.

But they had thought this way on other Christmas days and they had not been dreaming on other Christ-mas mornings. To be sure they dream-ed of Christmas before Christmas came but they didn't dream of any-thing nearly so wonderful as Christmas always was.

mas always was. There were four children. Lucy and Betty and Robbie and Billy. There, in the center of the Ilbrary, was the big tree. It was covered with candles and though it was daylight the candles were lighted and the shades pulled down so as to make the tree look its very best. And too, it wasn't so very bright at that hour, for they were always up very, very early on Christmas morning. They began to see the things on the

They began to see the things on the tree they had asked Santa Claus for, and then they looked to see if he had taken the notes they had written for him wishing him a Merry Christmas

Sure enough! He had taken them. They wondered if he had been pleased and they hoped very much that he had All these thoughts went through their minds very quickly and then they began to say, "Ah," and "Oh," and "Isn't it wonderful," and "Look!" "Well," said their daddy, "let us sit down and look at all our presents." They sat down on the floor. And each one took a stocking which had been hanging in front of the mantel piece. Every stocking was well filled. And each stocking stuck out queerly so that no one could guess what was in it.

What a guessing match there was What a guessing match there was before they emptied the stockings— just to keep the surprise a little long-er, for they had an idea that Santa Claus wanted them to be as surprised as possible. And when they did guess what was in some of the stockings it was such fun !

After the stockings had been looked

After the stockings had been looked at and the oranges and apples had rolled out of the toes, the presents were taken from the tree. The candy canes and candy animals and the decorations were kept on, for the candy would be eaten later on and the decorations would be kept through the Christmas concer the Christmas season.

There were many presents around the foot of the tree. And now they knew that they weren't really dream-ing. They were really, really alive, and this was really, really Christmas. Everything about it was real and their presents were real and they were wide awake and beginning to their presents were real and tar, were wide awake and beginning to feel hungry, for they hadn't waited to have breakfast first. They ate San-ta's wonderful oranges and mother said to daddy:

"Dear me, I wish I could find big juicy oranges like Santa Claus does. He's a better shopper than I am !"

And their daddy laughed and said, "He's a smart old fellow. It's hard to get ahead of him. And even if we can't find such good oranges we get them every year through his good-ness!"

"He's the dearest soul in all the world," said Lucy, "except the family.'

"He's wonderful," said Betty, "and oh, my dollle is so adorable. He gave me just the kind I asked for." "He's a wonder," said Robbie and

"He's a wonder," said Robbie and Billie together, and then everyone took his or her orange and paraded into the dining-room, singing once more, "Christmas comes but once a year!"

Unnecessary Luggage. A Scotchman who had emigrated to America wrote home to his wife in-structing her to sell most of their household property and take passage out to him. The good wife asked a neighbor to help in the packing. In the midst of the business they found Sandy's watch. The neighbor exam-ing it closely, and then said: "It's a grand watch, Janet. Ye'll be takin' it wi'ye?" "Na, na!" was the reply. "It wad be o' nae use oot there, for Sandy tells me in his letter that there is some oers o' difference between the time 'oers o' difference between the time here and in California, so I needna be takin' !umber !'

At last, after years of effort, an organization has been effected that will insure for all time the proper conduct, artistically and financially, of our Forest Theatre.

For ten years past, under more or less uncertain and temporary methods, the various dramatic organizations have meandered along, never at any time, because of divided interest in the community at large and amongst the players, producers and authors, realized the full measure of success that the unique Forest Theatre merits.

All this is now changed. And, before proceeding further, much credit should be given the commit-tee headed by Theodore M. Criley for their labors in bringing forward a constructive workable scheme of organization and administration.

The Forest Theatre Society, the Western Drama Society, and other organizations in Carmel have been merged into a non-profit sharing corporation under the laws of the State. The name of the new cor-poration is simply "The Forest Theatre. There will be no stock issued, membership certificates being pro-yided lieu thereof.

The articles of incorporation read that the purpose of the organization is to "own, operate and control The Forest Theatre." Under this head last Thursday night's meeting voted to accept the offer of the Carmel Development Company under which the property now used by the Forest the property now used by the Forest Theatre may be purchased for the sum of $2000, payable in annual installments of $250. There are sixteen lots in this tract. This offer does not include the strip of land leading from the road to the entrance gates, but this strip will be presented by gift deed to the Forest Theatre by Mrs. Charles Josselyn and her sons.

Josselyn and her sons. The election of the various offi-cials was rich in the selection of those competent to fill the exacting duties of their positions.
