What's this strange place called 'school'?

Schools all over Monterey County have either reopened or are getting ready to, and many of them have been posting photos to show how students are settling back into their old routines. At right, youngsters at Stevenson Lower School celebrate their return March 25. Below, from left, at Chartwell School in Seaside, a water rocket provides a lesson in physics, two students at All Saints School in Carmel Valley share a moment, and at Stevenson School in Pebble Beach, an image from a photo show illustrates how one family spent the shutdown.

Orange Tier brings more freedom for residents, businesses

By KELLY NIX

MONTEREY COUNTY moved into the less restrictive Orange Tier Wednesday, allowing more people to dine in restaurants, go to church and taste some wine, and Gov. Gavin Newsom said Tuesday that most coronavirus restrictions on businesses and public activities would be lifted by June 15, just in time for summer.

The news comes as coronavirus cases continue to decline in Monterey County, with just 102 during the last seven days, the lowest weekly total since mid-May 2020. The county's vaccination rate has been climbing, with about 41 percent of residents 16 and older having received at least one dose of the Pfizer, Moderna or Johnson & Johnson vaccines.

Bigger crowds

Monterey County's move into the Orange Tier allows restaurants and churches to increase capacity to 50 percent from 25 percent, and gyms and fitness centers to be open indoors at 25 percent capacity. The Orange Tier also permits the Monterey Bay Aquarium to operate at 50 percent when it opens next month, and movie theaters to bump capacity to 50 percent.

Monterey County has been out of the highly restrictive

Car Week organizers move into high gear

By MARY SCHLEY

THIS WEEK'S shift to the Orange Tier — and the announcement from Gov. Gavin Newsom that the tier system could be gone by mid-June — gave Car Week organizers a giant boost in confidence their events will happen this year.

"Of course, we don't know what guidelines will be in place in August, but the recent announcements all seem very positive," said Sandra Button, chairman of the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance. "And not just for us, but in general for the community, that things are going in the right direction."

'Fantastic news'

"It just makes us more optimistic," said Barry Toepke, director of heritage events and public relations at WeatherTech Raceway Laguna Seca. "It's fantastic news to our ears, and I would assume for local businesses."

"We are all planning on a happy and healthy Car Week," said Gordon McCall, who hosts McCall's Motoworks Revival with wife Molly and plays a key role in the Quail

CHS wants to know how you feel about mascot

By MARY SCHLEY

NEARLY A year after former Carmel High School students circulated an online petition demanding the replacement of their alma mater's mascot, the principal of the school is asking community members to share their opinions in a survey on whether the Padre, which has been used for more than 80 years, should stay or go.

"The data from this will be used by our mascot study group to weigh in on whether to validate the continued use of the Padre as our school mascot or to make a change," Jonathan Lyons said. "This is not a naming competition, but the first step in determining what the group's report will contain."

The study group was formed late last year to include CHS students, staff, alumni and "outside academic reprecalling for the removal of the Padre. Following comments at school board meetings last summer, when some said the mascot "represents the enslavement and genocide of local indigenous peoples and their cultures," and others defended its traditional place at the school, the board asked the CHS community, headed by Lyons, to decide whether the Padre icon should remain.

Last October, the school board adopted a new mascot naming policy that says all "mascots, nicknames, symbols, banners, flags, pennants, or similar identifiers used by a school's sports teams, extracurricular clubs, curricular

IT'S OFFICIAL: MoCo IS FULL OF RACISM

■ Supes vow to 'dismantle' it

By KELLY NIX

FOLLOWING DOZENS of other cities and counties in California and the nation, members of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors this week declared racism a "public health crisis" and said discrimination and oppression are responsible for widespread "inequities" in the county.

The supervisors Tuesday unanimously OK'd a resolution calling out racism as a major problem in Monterey County. They also pledged to "promote equity, inclusion and diversity in housing, employment, economic development, health care and public safety."

Many aspects

"Racism creates disparate outcomes in many areas of life that serve as the elemental foundation of the county's strategic initiatives, including housing, education, employment and the economy, public safety and criminal justice and physical and behavioral health," the resolution, introduced by Monterey County Health Department director Elsa Jimenez, said.

See RACISM page 20A

sentation," but it does not include any community members without a direct connection to the school. Therefore, the survey (tinyurl.com/carmelmascot) is their first chance to express themselves about the mascot, which is a caricature of one of the Spanish padres who established the California Mission system in the late 18th century and opened the door to European settlement and the development of the California that exists today.

While they built churches, created towns and spread the Catholic faith, the padres also mistreated the state's indigenous population, and with "social justice" protests sweeping the country last summer, CHS alumni Noelle Smith, Rachel Mosolf and Evynn LeValley circulated a petition

Guarding the gate

IN THE sunbelt, just south of Carmel High, an enchanting garden unfolds behind a vine-covered wall. The only view for passers-by is through an intricate wrought-iron gate, guarded by two tiny dogs, whose faces peer through the lowest points of scrollwork.

They don't really bark. It's a kind of chirping that sounds more like a question than a statement.

Their person, who found these little vagabonds wandering the streets of Fresno, really doesn't know what kind of dogs they are, but he likes to guess.

Skip looks like a papillon or a toy spaniel, mixed with something else. Now 8 or 9 years old, he was found trailing behind an older couple during their daily constitutional. Looking ragged and hungry, he seemed to need a home, so his person gave him one.

"Skip's a quiet, obedient little dog who likes to follow me around the yard," his person said. "When I first brought him home, he had a chance to wander off but didn't. I gave him a warm bath, bed and meal, which he probably figured was a pretty good deal. He still thinks so."

Skip's companion, a Chihuahua-like pup, was racing across a six-lane highway when her person noticed her dashing among speeding cars. He pulled over to see if he could collect the tiny thing, which was only about 6 months old.

"I don't know how she made it across that highway," her person said. "She almost got hit several times. When I got out of my car, she came right to me. I took her to the vet and then home. After a couple of days, she became quite the little pepper-upper."

He named her Pepsi.

"Now nearly 2, Pepsi is the most lovable, enthusiastic dog I've ever had," her person said. "She loves up on friends and strangers, alike; she just wants to be petted. And, when she is, she's overcome with joy."

KERA

Hi, my name is Kera. I'm a 10 1/2-year-old girl who needs a special person as my pet parent. I lived in a home the first half of my life then spent the last 5 years outside. Now I'm in a foster home. That's better, but it took me a month to come out of my shell because I was so scared and confused. Now I sit on my foster mom's lap and purr and even play! I need to be adopted into a quiet adult-only home with no other animals and a patient, gentle person. That's you, right?

All Golden Oldies cats are spayed/neutered and current on medical.

If you are interested in Kera go to

Council looking at paid parking again

By MARY SCHLEY

REMEMBER WHEN the city tried to charge for parking downtown? Yes, it made money. Yes, it got employees and business owners to stop taking up spaces on Ocean Avenue. And yes, the numerous residents and business owners who hated it voiced their objections loudly enough to convince the city to end its experiments both times.

Now, in its search for more money to possibly help pay off its looming retirement debt or fund more capital projects, with the possible added benefit of reducing traffic congestion in town, the city council wants to look into paid parking again.

At a meeting April 6, Mayor Dave Potter asked the council whether it wants to open up the “wound,” or rather, “this discussion,” again, “and is it going to be worth our time and expenditure of political capital, given the failure rate that’s been out there to date?”

Planning director Brandon Swanson presented different options for paid parking in the city, including charging people who leave their cars on Scenic Road, San Antonio Avenue and/or at the Del Mar parking lot at the foot of Ocean Avenue, making those who park downtown pay, or both, and he asked for a basic “yes” or “no” decision whether the council wanted to pursue it.

Day trippers

Councilwoman Carrie Theis said charging for parking would help make day trippers pay for some of the city services they use.

During the pandemic, there were a lot of people in town — many “short-term visitors were using our streets, using our restrooms, using our beach,” without paying the hotel and other taxes that make those services possible, she suggested.

She also noted that the previous paid-parking experiments worked not just because they brought in money, but because they forced employees and business owners to not take up spaces downtown and eliminated the two-hour shuffle, when people get in their cars to look for another spot — or give up and leave — to avoid getting a ticket for parking too long.

Theis said she hopes residents and business owners will support giving paid parking another go, especially since it no longer involves big ugly parking kiosks and often requires nothing more than a cell phone.

Councilwoman Karen Ferlito said she’s in favor of pursuing it. “We have so many needs and so many things that we want and residents want,” she said.

Ferlito observed that most people visiting the city expect to pay for parking, since it’s very common in other tourist destinations. She wondered how many beach towns in the state already have paid parking and suggested that information could be useful when facing off with the coastal commission on the issue.

Councilman Jeff Baron said he’d prefer to charge for parking downtown and that it could also alleviate some of the traffic congestion caused by people constantly searching for spaces by letting them park for as long as they want to — and pay for it.

Mayor Dave Potter commented that money earned from paid parking at the beach could be used to improve the Scenic pathway and suggested paid parking be reinstated in the North Lot at Sunset Center, as it was until 2014.

Potter further suggested that merchants be able to buy parking permits and said the council should look at charging construction companies for all the parking they take up during jobs. But Potter also warned that putting paid parking downtown will be “the combat zone.”

“I hope the community realizes there are revenues out there that will allow us to provide the services people want,” he said.

With the council generally supportive of the concept, Swanson will develop more refined plans for future discussion.

The gavel falls

Verdicts, pleas and sentencings announced by Monterey County District Attorney Jeannine Pacioni

Feb. 10 — A jury found David Michael Burge, 30, a resident of Pacific Grove, guilty of four felony charges, including inflicting corporal injury on a person with whom he had a dating relationship, two counts of assault with force likely to produce great bodily injury, and communicating a criminal threat.

On Oct. 5, 2020, Jane Doe and Burge, her ex-boyfriend, were staying at a local inn when he became angry because she refused to warm up a frozen blueberry muffin for him. In response, he smashed the muffin into her face and punched her in the face with a closed fist. When she called her mother after the incident, Burge told her that if she called the police, he would kill her. Her mother overheard this threat. Burge made a second threat that he would get out of jail, come back, and kill her.

On Oct. 7, 2020, Doe awoke and found Burge angry again because she had taken a few bites of a cheeseburger he was saving for himself. He tried to pull her out of bed and demanded that she go buy him a cheeseburger. When she got out of bed, she realized that he had taken her electronic tablet and hidden it from her. He demanded that she give him money for a cheeseburger and punched her in the face. This caused her glasses to fall off her face. While she was on the ground looking for her glasses, he knelt next to her and punched her a second time in the face.

Both punches caused visible injuries and swelling. He then threw her on the bed three times and strangled her each time. The first two times, she was unable to breathe and lost consciousness. The strangulation also left a visible injury on her neck.

Feb. 18 — Judge Pamela L. Butler sentenced Glenn Edwards, 27, a resident of Seaside, to seven years in California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation. Edwards pled guilty to a charge of robbery with a special enhancement for being armed with a firearm and to making criminal threats. He also admitted he suffered a prior strike conviction. He will have to serve 85 percent of his sentence before being eligible for parole.

On Nov. 9, 2015, Edwards and four juveniles went to Via Paraiso Park in Monterey where they approached several victims and demanded they get out of their vehicle, move to another area, and lie down on the ground. Meanwhile, the defendants rifled through the victims' vehicle, taking items including a purse, iPhone, wallet and money.

On July 14, 2019, Salinas police were called when there was a disagreement over personal property between Edwards and a victim. Edwards showed up at the victim's house demanding property he believed the victim possessed. When the victim told Edwards he did not have the items, Edwards got upset and threatened the victim.

Repairs at Rat Creek way ahead of schedule, Hwy 1 to reopen April 30

By CHRIS COUNTS

HIGHWAY 1 at Rat Creek in Big Sur wasn't expected to reopen until early summer, but that changed Thursday when Caltrans reported that repair work is way ahead of schedule — and the scenic road will reopen between Carmel and Hearst Castle April 30.

Mostly dry weather has made it possible for the work to proceed with minimal delays.

“Reopening Highway 1 at Rat Creek just three months after a washout of this magnitude is great news for residents, recreationalists, business owners, and those who move goods through this region,” Caltrans Director Toks Omishakin said. “Caltrans has been focused on the emergency work needed to increase the resiliency of this highway section to weather, and the fixes made will allow for safe travel.”

District 5 Director Tim Gubbins said workers deserve some of the credit for the accelerated timetable. They've been on site “seven days a week during daylight hours.” “Our crews have worked to create a safe road in challenging conditions, and we are excited to reopen this lifeline earlier than expected,” Gubbins said.

Intermittent delays

Work continues at the site. “Caltrans will establish the base of a new road during the next two weeks, to be followed by paving and striping,” the agency reported.

Once Highway 1 reopens, there will still be work to do, including installing a new drainage system with a 10-foot diameter culvert to improve flow during storms, and permanent guardrails, along with landscaping. Motorists can expect intermittent traffic delays as a result.

The highway has been closed since heavy rains triggered a mudslide Jan. 28 that wiped out a 150-foot section of pavement at the site, which is located about 40 miles south of Rio Road.

New P.G. restaurant coupon offered

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

THE PACIFIC Grove Chamber of Commerce has distributed 5,500 discount dining coupons to nearly two dozen hotels in the city to promote the city's restaurants ahead of the busy summer season, the chamber announced.

The $10 off coupons — given to guests who stay in 23 of the city's hotels — count toward single orders made at 36 participating Pacific Grove restaurants. The coupons exclude alcohol, tax and gratuity and are valid through June 20.

The promotion is funded by the Pacific Grove Hospitality Improvement District, which promotes the hotels.

Chamber president Moe Ammar credited the hotels for “stepping up” in supporting the coupon idea. The chamber in November 2020 mailed $10 off coupons and included them in advertisements in newspapers. More than 4,000 coupons were redeemed.

Wild Gray Wolf passes through county on epic journey southward

■ First to come here in a century

By CHRIS COUNTS

ASIDE FROM a few stragglers that have been sighted near the state's northern border, the Gray Wolf hasn't been seen throughout most of California in a century, but one turned up last week in Monterey County — part of a thousand-mile-plus journey that's taken him to many parts of the state.

The wolf is now in San Luis Obispo County and continues heading south, averaging more than 16 miles a day. Experts say he left his pack "in search of a new territory and/or a mate."

While she couldn't say where the wolf is going, Jordan Traverso of the California Department of Fish and Wildlife said it was inevitable that wolves from Oregon would make their way into California, where they once thrived but were wiped out by the turn of the 20th century.

"They're prolific and breeding, and they're expanding their range," Traverso told The Pine Cone. "We knew this was going to happen — we just didn't know when."

The wandering wolf is known to biologists as OR-93, a young male wolf who left what's called the White River pack, which is based near Mt. Hood in the northern part of Oregon. They've been tracking his GPS collar since it was put on him last summer.

"OR-93 continues to travel farther south in California than the collared wolves that have preceded him," Traverso reported.

16 counties and counting

According to state fish and wildlife, the wolf entered the northeast corner of California on Jan. 30. After a brief return to Oregon, he was back in the state Feb. 4 and passed through Alpine, Lassen, Plumas, Sierra, Nevada, Placer, El Dorado, Amador, and Calaveras counties before entering Mono County Feb. 25.

Known as OR-93 to the researchers who tagged him in Oregon, a young male Gray Wolf has moved deep in California.

"By late March, OR-93 was in Fresno County, and then entered San Benito County after crossing Highway 99 and Interstate 5," the agency reported. "He was in Monterey County April 1 and San Luis Obispo County April 5."

The tracking device the wolf carries does not provide precise locations, and even if state fish and wildlife learns exactly where the wolf is, they won't say.

"We will protect the precise location," Traverso said. If anyone sees OR-93, state fish and wildlife is asking them to report it here: wildlife.ca.gov/Conservation/Mammals/Gray-Wolf/Sighting-Report.

"OR-93 also has a purple collar around his neck which should make the animal identifiable," Traverso noted.

Traverso observed that the Gray Wolf is an endangered species and is protected by state law.

Fruitless search?

She also said it's a good thing wolves are back in the state. "We're happy when animals that historical belong here are here," she added. "Hopefully, it finds what it's looking for."

A private environmental group, the Los Padres Forest Watch, noted that state fish and wildlife has sought to identify suitable wolf habitat in California as recently as 2016, which could pave the way for the predator to be reintroduced somewhere in the state — maybe even locally. "Most of the suitable wolf habitat along the coast is located in the Los Padres National Forest," the nonprofit reported, adding that it looks forward to seeing more wolves in the region.

"We don't know if OR-93's journey will take him into the Los Padres National Forest, nor how long he may stick around," the group added. "But his presence in our region gives us hope that this won't be the last time we see—or hear—wolves in California's Central Coast region."

P.G. museum to reopen Saturday

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

OFFERING A multi-faceted look at the local flora and fauna, the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History is set to reopen Saturday, April 9. The hours will be Friday through Monday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

According to the museum, the reopening prioritizes "protecting the health and safety of its staff and visitors," delivering "on its public service mission and program of scientific research and education," and contributing "to the recovery of Pacific Grove and the region by welcoming families, teachers, and learners of all ages."

Like other museums, the local one expanded its online content during Covid, and will continue to do so. "Our digital offerings will remain accessible to serve the widest possible audience on an ongoing basis," the museum reported. For more details, visit pgmuseum.org.

How moving to a home on 28 acres may be good for your health

You are invited to learn about healthy aging at a free webinar Thursday, April 22nd at 1:30 pm

Rattling around a big old house may not be that healthy or safe. As we age, nutrition, exercise and immediate access to health services becomes increasingly important. This informative webinar provides insights into why living in a life care community may be better than long term care insurance for those over 65.

On April 22nd at 1:30 pm Director of Health Services, Chris Regan, R.N., will share her proven techniques for healthy aging. It is a virtual presentation on Zoom. In the 60-minute webinar you'll learn tips for how a sharp mind contributes to a fit body, and why three levels of care (independent living, assisted living and skilled nursing) in one community is a cost-effective way to prepare for later life.

RSVP by April 20th

Register online at cvmanor.org to participate. After you RSVP, you'll receive a confirmation email with access to the event. # County gets $28.3M to help with rent, utilities

By MARY SCHLEY

THE UNITED Way is distributing $28,296,836 in state and federal taxpayer funds to residents who are having a hard time paying their rent and utility bills due to the pandemic's impacts on their jobs and the local economy.

"The overall goal is to prevent homelessness and address the economic impact of the pandemic," Katy Castagna, president and CEO of United Way Monterey County, said during a call with local media last month. "We know people have been needing help paying the rent."

The U.S. Treasury's Emergency Rental Assistance Program allocated $25 billion for households falling behind on their rent, with the county receiving $12,905,387 to distribute. State Senate Bill 91, which passed Jan. 28, earmarked $1.5 billion for rental assistance, and of that, the county got $15,391,449. The state funds must be used up by Aug. 1, and the federal money has to be spent by the end of the year.

"We need to spend $28 million not only by December, but most of it needs to be spent this summer," Castagna said. "We have to spend $3.5 million a month in order to meet these objectives and not have the state or federal government take it back."

In March, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors voted to have the United Way administer the program, and the nonprofit is working with 13 agencies throughout the county to handle applications and distribute the funds. The program started March 23.

Who's eligible?

To qualify, residents must be able to demonstrate they've lost income due to the pandemic and need help paying their rent and/or water, sewer, power and garbage bills going back as far as March 18, 2020, according to Josh Madfis, who also works for the United Way. Eligibility starts at 80 percent of the area median income, meaning one person can't earn more than $54,250, up to a household of six people not taking in more than $89,900.

But those who come in at 50 percent or below the median income — $33,950 for one person, up to $52,650 for a household of six — and families facing unemployment or homelessness will get priority. Of course, they must live within the county.

"A key caveat to this program is landlords have to accept 80 percent of the rent they're owed," he continued. "That's mandated by the State of California."

Recipients can get up to 12 months of assistance with their rent and bills, and if their landlords won't accept 80 percent and forgo 20 percent, according to Madfis, the tenants can still get up to 25 percent of their rent from the program.

"That's to prevent them from being evicted," he explained, since the state ban on evictions requires tenants to pay at least 25 percent of their rent in order to be protected.

To apply, residents in need can call 211 or go online to mcrenthelp.com to undergo initial screening and referral, or they can apply directly through one of the agencies working with the United Way. While many cities are on that list, the only Peninsula jurisdictions are the cities of Monterey and Seaside. People living elsewhere on the Peninsula can work through any of the three agencies helping residents countywide: The Salvation Army, Goodwill Central Coast, and Central Coast Energy Services. Monterey Peninsula College students can work through the school, which has already received $560,000 from the United Way to help with rent and utility bills.

Fairly extensive documentation is required to verify the recipient meets the income levels and can demonstrate loss of funds due to the coronavirus — though the United Way also has a self-attestation form, if none of those documents are available, according to Madfis. Landlords must also show they are willing to accept the terms and have to prove they are affiliated with the rentals in question.

The program has some fraud-prevention aspects, too, including ensuring people can't apply for and receive funds through more than one agency, he said.

Lauren Suwansupa, who works with the county's department of social services, said she hopes landlords and tenants will learn about the program and take advantage of it.

"There are plenty of funds," she said, so unlike smaller assistance programs in the past, "it's not going to run out in the next month or so."

Planning underway to repair Palo Colorado

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE PROJECT has mostly been on the back burner for four years, but two weeks ago, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors approved paying Quincy Engineering $1.6 million to plan the rebuilding and reopening of upper Palo Colorado Road. The contract runs through April 2024.

Closed since the Soberanes Fire scorched the area in July 2016 — and badly damaged during the wet winter that followed — the upper 3.8 miles of Palo Colorado Road are in bad shape, according to a report the county released last week.

Before it can be reopened, work on the road will involve "excavating and reconstructing 14 damaged areas, and installing soldier-pile walls or soil nail retaining walls to stabilize the slope and the roadway without disturbing the creek," a county report says. "Additionally, there were 14 culverts identified within the project limits that were clogged with debris and silt, which will need to be cleaned."

Costs rising

When The Pine Cone last reported on the status of the road, the county had estimated it would cost $11 million to fix the road. That number increased to $16.8 million after a site visit in October 2020 revealed more damage to the road.

County spokesperson Maia Carroll told The Pine Cone this week that the work isn't fully funded yet. "While we did receive FEMA-obligated funds, there is still a substantial funding gap that the County and partner agencies will need to work through," she said.

The Soberanes Fire burned 57 homes, nearly all in the Palo Colorado area, stripping hillsides bare of erosion-controlling vegetation, and leaving many homes vulnerable to mudslides. Heavy rain followed in January 2017, leading to widespread damage along the road, which travels just under 8 miles from Highway 1 southeast to Botchers Gap.

Kerry Frangiosi, who uses the road to reach her home, told The Pine Cone that the road didn't suffer too much damage this past winter, mostly because there's been little rain. But she suggested it's in the county's best interest to do that work sooner rather than later. "If the county could clear a couple culverts, it would help prevent further damage," said Frangiosi, who along with some of her neighbors, has made minor repairs to the road themselves so they can use it.

Like any good musical production, it ain't over till the octopus poops

By ELAINE HESSER

IF YOU'VE missed the aquarium during the year it's been closed, think how depressing the shutdown has been for the people who work there. But just like Maria von Trapp and those plucky kids in "The Sound of Music," they've figured out how to cheer themselves up. They think of "Aquarium Things."

In a video that debuted on the aquarium's website March 12, Aquarium Executive Director Julie Packard and a group of the facility's staff members lament not only how bad the shutdown has been, but the difficulties of all those Zoom meetings everyone's had to endure. But singing about sharks, seabirds and bat rays, it turns out, makes everything better.

Avalon Bauman, the lyricist for the project, said the video just grew out of a meeting of the aquarium's "content team," which is responsible for what you read on its website, or see on its social media posts and other materials the Aquarium puts out.

Sometime during the meeting, the phrase, "my favorite things" came up, and the song began bouncing around in Bauman's head. The first phrase she wrote was, "hand-feeding sharks with a neoprene mitten." Other members of the marketing and communications contributed to the lyrics as well.

Unusual lyrics

The idea for the video took shape, but singers were needed. Through some personal contacts, the aquarium reached out to Sandy Rudo, a music instructor at Hartnell, who, among other things, directs the college choir. She arranged for the choir to perform the song — but only after they mastered lyrics like, "dolphins darting with colorful flashes," "octopus poop that looks like one long noodle," and "a mola mola that looks like a Frisbee, kelp forests swaying and making you dizzy."

Once the music was completed, the video was recorded in various exhibit areas, and Bauman said that many of the employees are shown with their own favorite aquarium things. While there are the req-

TOURISM GROUPS SAY SHOTS, TESTING KEY TO KEEPING TRAVEL OPEN, HOTELS FULL

By MARY SCHLEY

AS ANYONE who's been out and about on the Monterey Peninsula during the past several months knows, visitors are already flocking here. But with this week's move to the Orange Tier and subsequent lifting of more restrictions on businesses, local tourism organizations and chambers are now freer to market the area as a travel destination — and to do what they can to make sure no surges in infections occur as a result.

Amy Herzog, executive director of Visit Carmel, which is funded by fees charged to hotel guests and restaurant customers, said her group "is committed to not only promoting the destination, but also to protecting and preserving it." That effort includes marketing that "educates and reminds our visitors to 'Love Carmel Like a Local' by visiting safely and responsibly."

The Carmel Chamber of Commerce, meanwhile, has "tirelessly advocated" for the safe reopening of businesses and is encouraged by the state's move to lift restrictions — including the possibility of getting rid of most of them in mid-June — according to Jenny MacMurdo, president and CEO. "It is a welcome sense of progress for all, businesses and residents alike," she said.

Stop the rollercoaster

But the past year has certainly demonstrated that progress during a pandemic is far from linear, and everyone should work hard to avoid a repeat of the rollercoaster ride of 2020 and early 2021 that had businesses reopening and then being shut down again amid surges in infections.

"I can tell you that there is a lot of optimism among our stakeholders. To be clear, it is a cautious optimism, because uncertainty is still rampant," said Rob O'Keefe, president and CEO of the Monterey County Convention & Visitors Bureau. "But our hospitality industry has shown one thing that is absolutely certain: our resiliency and innovation will get us through."

Business owners and residents are responsible for what happens next, according to MacMurdo.

"Staying open is entirely up to us," she said. "We must remember that while we move forward, there is no guarantee that we won't move back. As such, we ask that everyone continue to protect themselves and others from the spread of coronavirus."

Getting people vaccinated is critical, and with more vaccine now available, many are becoming eligible for the shot even sooner than expected. Everyone 16 and over will be able to get it starting April 15, though this week, the county opened clinics to that group when officials realized they had enough vaccine to do so.

"Local business owners are optimistic currently, with vaccinations on the rise and cases on the decline, and the new CDC guidance of 'OK to travel for those vaccinated' has given a big bump to our area," MacMurdo said.

Herzog said hotel bookings are nearing pre-pandemic levels.

"We are seeing hotel bookings approaching 2019 numbers, which we attribute to short-term pent-up demand to travel, as well as the increasing number of vaccinated people," she said. "We are hopeful for a nice, even level of visitation to continue through the summer to aid in recovery."

The right sales pitch

Visit Carmel has been marketing to upscale travelers who are more inclined to fly or drive here for longer stays, she said.

O'Keefe is projecting a multiyear recovery for tourism, especially international travel, and while some forecasts don't see the numbers reaching pre-Covid levels until 2025, aggressive marketing might speed that up.

"We couldn't control the onset of Covid, but we certainly can affect our recovery," he said.

The MCCVB, which the City of Carmel and other local cities pay for destination marketing, will launch a new national advertising pitch later this month. "The campaign is just the first step in a multi-year attempt to put our destination brand on the map with new travelers who might

Group ranks Panetta above average

■ Much better than Pelosi, Schiff, Swalwell or Ocasio-Cortez

By KELLY NIX

REP. JIMMY Panetta is more successful as a lawmaker in the U.S. House of Representatives than many of his colleagues who have much more experience, according to rankings released last month by two prominent American universities.

The Center for Effective Lawmaking — a nonpartisan project between the University of Virginia and Vanderbilt University — measures the success of members in the House of Representatives by the number of bills each one sponsored, the bills that received action in a committee or on the House floor, and bills that passed the House and became law.

The center provides what it calls a Legislative Effectiveness Score for each member of the House and Senate based on 15 indicators that “collectively capture” the ability of a legislator to move items “through the legislative process and into law,” according to an explanation on the center’s website.

Panetta, a Democrat, was given a score of 1.126, which is above the 1.0 that the center considers average for federal legislators, although the researchers also said he ranked 121 out of 240 among his Democratic colleagues in the House.

Panetta told The Pine Cone Wednesday that while he appreciates the recognition, he had not heard of the group. He also said such rankings don’t take into account legislation that is included in other, much larger bills. For example, the Full Military Honors Act, which Panetta authored, was included in the 2020 National Defense Authorization Act. That bill and numerous others Panetta backed were signed into law in the 116th Congress.

“I appreciate it, and I think the study demonstrates some of my work, but it definitely doesn’t demonstrate all of my work,” Panetta said.

“The ultimate indicator” of the work he’s doing is the satisfaction from his constituents, he went on to say.

How he compares

Georgetown University last year gave Panetta high marks for his job performance, ranking him 42nd out of more than 400 Democratic and Republican lawmakers.

The Center for Effective Lawmaking gave highest marks to Democrats Rep. Nita Lowey and Rep. Carolyn Maloney, from New York, and Oregon Rep. Peter DeFazio.

Panetta ranked higher than many of his colleagues with more experience or bigger profiles.

California Democrat Rep. Adam Schiff’s score, for instance, was just below the 1.0 average, while Rep. Eric Swalwell, also from California, was scored at an abysmal .270.

Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, the socialist from New York, was among the least effective lawmakers, getting a score of only .209, and a ranking 230 out of 240. Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi ranked near the bottom at 237 out of 240.

Panetta offered a possible reason some legislators received low marks.

“There are members of Congress who legislate, and there are members who are successful in other ways,” he said.

Golden Arches in the village? No, that already never happened

By CHRIS COUNTS

A BRIGHT red and yellow sign announcing that a McDonald's restaurant is coming soon recently went up on a cherished building in Carmel Valley Village, where such a thing could be seen as a reason to start a riot. But there's nothing to be alarmed about — the sign is 30 years old.

It's actually part of an eye-catching display of old business signs from the village that recently went up on the outside of the Carmel Valley History Center.

The folks at the history center are busy behind the scenes preparing the museum's grand reopening, which is set for May 1, and the display of signs is one of its new exhibits. The museum, which contains a varied collection of photos and historical artifacts, has been closed since March 2020.

"We took advantage of the down time and we completely refreshed our exhibits and added a few new ones," Jeffrey Olsen told The Pine Cone.

The sign exhibit is certain to be popular with tourists and locals, a few of whom may recall the controversy when the McDonald's sign went up.

"In the early 90s, an old bank went out of business, and there was a lot of concern about what was going to take its place," Olsen explained. "A couple of jokers made a sign saying that McDonald's is coming soon, which got everyone up in arms. It was quickly taken down."

Signs of a time gone by

The collection of historic signs has been placed on three sides of the museum's exterior, and includes favorites from the Thunderbird Bookstore, Carmel Valley Sun, Carmel Valley Market and the Carmel Valley Airport.

Another new exhibit looks at steelhead in the Carmel River and local tributaries — not just from an environmental perspective, but an historical one, too. Old photos showing numerous anglers lining the banks of the river will no doubt surprise the locals of today.

Council considers more than $3.6M in projects, doesn't take any off list

By MARY SCHLEY

THE CITY laid off employees last year as the pandemic severely impacted tax revenues, and an ever-growing retirement debt is a constant source of worry, but the city council is contemplating spending $3.6 million on capital projects over the next year, including studying the idea of closing Sixth Avenue behind Devendorf Park to create a "Devendorf Plaza."

Council members are also set to spend an unasked-for $158,000 in retroactive pay for the police officers and city executives who took pay cuts to help shore up the 2020-2021 budget, according to their discussion at the April 6 meeting.

And they approved spending another $262,500 this year on a half-dozen "essential" projects, including a new fire pump at Sunset Center, a new water filtration system in the public works yard, two new police cars and a new dispatch center in the Carmel P.D. station, as well as a greenhouse gas emissions study and money to reopen a Covid-compliant city hall.

With that decided, public works director Bob Harary presented a list of 31 projects estimated to cost $3,606,565, with nearly $600,000 for roadwork, $200,000 for a new police antenna, and allocations for police radios, a new ambulance, repairs at Sunset Center, generators, various planning documents, designs for storm drains and streambed stabilization, the long-discussed Carmel P.D. renovation, renovation of the Scout House (which has been closed since 2003) and various other projects.

The list also includes a $132,500 plan to digitize more than 5,000 paper records kept in the planning and building department and make them accessible online.

$12 million more

He also projected an additional $12 million worth of projects, plans and equipment between July 2022 and July 2026.

Harary acknowledged the list of projects exceeds the amount of tax dollars the city has to spend on it.

"Our needs still well exceed those funds," he said. "We have a long-range problem with infrastructure — that shouldn't be news to council or anyone in the audience."

City administrator Chip Rerig reminded the council that the projected nearly $2.63 million surplus this fiscal year might be sparking a lot of confidence in the city's cash flow, but that spending it all on capital projects wouldn't be prudent.

"If we spend all the money on capital, then there's no money to hire anyone back to implement the projects," he said.

'Not one dollar'

What Harary's list didn't include was any money for the Scenic Road pathway, which upset the Carmel Cares volunteers who have been tending to the path for months. Many sent letters criticizing the city for not pitching in to help restore and maintain an important piece of real estate.

"It is critical that the city dedicate adequate resources to the Scenic pathway. This is not just some static asset," said resident Shirley Moon, the lead Carmel Cares volunteer who spends hours working to keep it tidy. "It is a revenue-generating part of our community."

In the eight months she's spent working down there, Moon said she has learned even more how important the bluff pathway is to locals and visitors. She's received thank-you notes, impromptu cash donations, support from Scenic residents — and frequent questions about why the city isn't doing the work.

"I was surprised to see not one dollar was invested in the Scenic pathway," said Dale Byrne, who founded Carmel Cares. "The city could stop spending money to assess the problems at the Scenic pathway and start working with Carmel Cares to get things done."

After spending considerable time discussing the projects — though not going into great depth on the idea of creating a new Devendorf Park plaza that would incorporate the library but doesn't indicate what would happen to Rich Pepe's Vesuvio restaurant or the fire department's need to use Sixth Avenue to get through town — council members did not make any decisive moves to take anything off the list.

As a result, city administrator Chip Rerig suggested sending the entire list to the planning commission to review for compliance with the general plan.

The council will take another look at the list when it gets the whole draft 2021-2022 budget at its regular meeting in May.

Pastor pit project, Carmel Lodge, WWI arch at planning commission

By MARY SCHLEY

MONACO BILLIONAIRE Patrice Pastor's long-awaited plans for the pit at Dolores and Fifth, the proposed remodel of the Carmel Lodge following years of inactivity, and a proposal to install bollards and chains around the World War I Memorial Arch to keep people from climbing on it and stop cars from running into it are on the planning commission's lengthy April 14 agenda.

All told, the commission is set to discuss and vote on 11 applications during the meeting, which is scheduled to start at 4 p.m.

Pastor's Ulrika Plaza project, which is replacing the defunct plans for Del Dono Court, is likely to be the most interesting. Among his many real-estate transactions in town over the last several years, Pastor's purchase of the large property on the southwest corner of Dolores and Fifth from developers Bob Leidig and Michael Draper for $9 million in March 2020 drew a lot of attention, given the construction site had languished for more than a year after they ran out of funds. Adjacent properties continue to suffer structural problems as a result.

Last November, Pastor and his representatives shared preliminary plans for the large corner property. Designed by architect Henry Ruhnke, the half Mediterranean, half Tudor-style, two-story complex will contain a dozen apartments and 17 shops, with an interior courtyard and other outdoor spaces, and underground parking. The planning commission is set to get its first look at the project April 14.

The Carmel Lodge a block away at San Carlos and Fifth has been slated for a rebuild for years, but the permits expired, and nothing has happened there. Now, the commission will review new plans prepared by the Paul Davis Partnership firm.

Protect the arch

The Fountain project, which ended up undergoing numerous planning commission and city council meetings due to its unusual proposal of taking over city land in exchange for providing other land for public use, and then went dormant two years ago, is set to be back, too.

At its last public hearing in April 2019, the city council asked for more changes to plans that had already been reworked several times to address various issues on the awkward lot on Eighth between Junipero and Mission.

And, in the final step of their restoration of the World War I arch, proponents are asking the city to OK chains, posts and other measures to keep people off the memorial.

For detailed information about the commission's upcoming meeting, visit ci.carmel.ca.us. Planning director Brandon Swanson said the full agenda packet should be available Friday afternoon.

Forest Theater to reopen with 'Wizard of Oz'

By CHRIS COUNTS

CLOSED SINCE the pandemic began, the Forest Theater will welcome back a live audience April 24 when PacRep Theatre and the Forest Theater Guild team up to present a screening of classic film, "The Wizard of Oz." Showtime is 8 p.m.

"What better way to celebrate the reopening of Carmel's historic Forest Theater, than with a cinematic treasure that is, itself, a Forest Theater favorite?" PacRep's executive director Stephen Moorer asked. "There's no place like home."

Due to Covid restrictions, the theater will be far from packed, but at least there will be an audience, albeit a socially distanced local one.

"Covid restrictions will be followed, including the use of masks, socially distanced seating for individual households, and selected staggered arrival times beginning at 6:30 p.m.," PacRep announced. "As of this date, tickets will only be available for regional attendees — within 120 miles — and concessions will not be available."

But that doesn't mean you can't munch on something tasty while you enjoy the film, or sip on a beverage. "The traditional practice of 'bringing your own picnic' is encouraged," PacRep confirmed.

You can also converse with some very special guests, but don't try give any of them a hug. "Prior to the film, as guests arrive, PacRep's Dorothy, Scarecrow, Tin Man and Lion will be available for socially distanced 'photo bombs,' so audiences should bring their cameras or smart phones," PacRep suggested.

Proceeds benefit the two local nonprofit theater groups. Everybody who attends will receive a commemorative poster.

Tickets are $20 for adults and $10 for all those under 18. For tickets call (831) 622-0100 or visit pacrep.org.

Marina Coast Water District hires new GM

By KELLY NIX

MARINA'S WATER agency announced this week that it's hired a new general manager to replace former head Keith Van Der Maaten, who quit last November for another job in Southern California.

A spokeswoman for Marina Coast Water District said Tuesday that on April 12, Remleh Scherzinger, 53, would take over the position held by interim manager Derek Cray, who will return to his post as the water district's operations and maintenance manager.

Scherzinger — who spent only four months as general manager of another California water agency before its board of directors decided to remove him last fall — will replace Van Der Maaten, who resigned from Marina Coast after a 5-year stint to become the head of the Laguna Beach County Water District.

Marina Coast board president Jan Shriner credited Cray for stepping in temporarily, and said the agency is "excited to bring in Remleh Scherzinger to seamlessly continue the coordination of projects and partnerships. Mr. Scherzinger has strong credentials and carries a reputation of reasonableness, competency, and diplomacy we hope will also benefit our community."

"Scherzinger brings 20 years of experience in water, wastewater, and electric utility industry," according to Marina Coast.

Scherzinger was the general manager for the Nevada Irrigation District for more than seven years before resigning in July 2020 to take a job at the Truckee Donner Public Utility District. After only four months on the job in Truckee, though, the utility district's board of directors voted unanimously to "terminate Scherzinger without cause," according to a Nov. 19, 2020, article in The Sierra Sun. "There is not a good fit between the board and the general manager, and we feel this is in the best interest of the Truckee Donner PUD," the newspaper reported board president Jeff Bender as saying.

The Truckee agency paid him a base salary of $275,000, and his contract was to run through July 2023, the Sierra Sun said.

It is estimated that half of those with glaucoma don't know that they have it. Glaucoma rarely has symptoms—until it's too late. A dilated eye exam can detect glaucoma early and save your sight. Don't delay.

Risk Factors:

- Age over 50
- Severe near-sightedness
- Family history of glaucoma
- High eye pressure
- History of eye injury or trauma

TOURISM

not have considered us before," he said.

Safety and responsibility will remain key, as will efforts to bring travelers here off-season and midweek, considering weekends are already busy as it is. "We're also promoting sustainable travel to ensure tourists are educated and encouraged to treat our community with respect," O'Keefe said.

Janine Chicourrat, GM of the Portola Hotel and chair of the Monterey County Hospitality Association's executive committee, predicted the Peninsula will rebound more quickly than other travel destinations — especially cities — as people seek more open space and outdoor activities. She has said the pandemic cost the hospitality industry

$1.8 billion, and job recovery is lagging but is starting to ramp back up, with labor shortages becoming a growing concern.

Chicourrat also noted those in the hotel and restaurant sector are well practiced in protecting people, at this point. "When the pandemic started, we didn't know how to protect ourselves and our employees," she said. "Within 60 days, we figured out what we needed to do. I think people are comfortable and prepared."

Testing still important

MacMurdo is convinced ongoing testing will also be significant in the ongoing recovery.

"There's a new movement toward routine testing and prevention for hospitality workers," she said. "The idea is that moving forward, even for those vaccinated, routine testing of employees will be helpful as prevention against spread from or to tourists."

MacMurdo and others are working to build "a reliable, staffed, routine local testing program for our hospitality workers" to help identify hot spots and other problems before they get out of control. She said she hopes to get the city on board, too.

When restrictions are finally lifted and the coronavirus is under control, Chicourrat said, "I really do believe there will be a return like the Roaring '20s."

And when that happens, MacMurdo said, "our businesses will be prepared and ready."

SIGNS

A third new display looks at the history of roads and transportation in Carmel Valley — from Native Americans using oxen to pull wagons, to modern-day SUVs zipping up and down Carmel Valley Road.

Besides new shows, Olsen and fellow volunteers did lots of little things to make the museum a better place, like making captions on displays easier to read — an important consideration when so many of its visitors are retirees.

Located at 77 Carmel Valley Road, the museum also has a small bookshop, which mostly showcases local authors.

Sherrill (Lynn) McLeod

Sherrill (Lynn) McLeod, 73, of Carmel, California, passed away January 25, 2021, due to a car accident enroute from Idaho Falls, Idaho, to her home in Carmel, California.

She was born in Wheatridge, Colorado to parents Leland and Mary Elizabeth Williams. She had one brother, Lee, who also passed away in the car accident.

Lynn was self-educated and scored high on all tests and leveled up quickly in school. She worked in upper management as a secretary and was advised to go into the oil industry. She became a P.A. to upper management. She married her husband, Jerry, the love of her life, in 1975. She had two stepsons, Mark and Steve. Jerry passed away in 2010.

Lynn lived a very interesting life. She traveled to many different places. She took cooking classes from top chefs, one being President Kennedy's personal chef. She loved to cook and would put on grand dinners for 500 people. She was always learning and consistently expanded her knowledge in some way, such as weekly memorizing new words and their definitions. She was an interior decorator and loved antiques. Lynn enjoyed oil painting and at one time had an exhibit in Carmel.

She had a beautiful smile and contagious laugh. Lynn cared for her family and friends very much.

Richard Fowler

1931 - 2021

Richard Fowler, long-time resident of the Monterey Peninsula, passed peacefully in Medford, Oregon on Thursday, March 25, 2021. He was born in Goff, Kansas. When he was six years old his family moved to Fresno, CA. He went to school in the Fresno area until the 6th grade. He then attended the Scandinavian grammar school, a three-room school with grades 6-8 in one room and the same teacher for all three years.

He graduated from Clovis High School in 1949. His favorite subjects were history, math, sports and wood-shop. Sports were a passion from his youth and in High School he lettered three years in football, and was voted outstanding lineman his senior year. He also lettered two years in baseball as a catcher. He attended Fresno City College in 1949 and lettered in football. A friend on the football team invited him to go with him to the US Marine Reserve meeting one evening in 1949. He later enlisted, and after boot camp served two years on active duty as a Sergeant and five years in the reserve.

Richard married his high school sweetheart, Vernes, in 1951. They had known each other since early childhood and began their 70 years together in Carlsbad, CA, eventually making their home in many locations of California (Fresno, Solvang, Monterey, Corral De Tierra) and recently in Medford, Oregon.

Richard worked for the Pacific Gas & Electric Company for over 28 years as an electric groundman in Fresno, CA and apprentice lineman in Solvang, CA. He was promoted to lineman, foreman and troubleman in Monterey, CA. In 1980 he left PG&E to enter the real estate business. He owned and managed Harbor Realty in Monterey, CA for over 20 years as Agent and Broker. He retired at 78 years of age and after a few years moved to the retirement community, Rogue Valley Manor, in Medford, Oregon.

He enjoyed many activities and hobbies like golf, fishing, backpacking, woodworking, gardening and he was an avid reader. One of the joys he found at Rogue Valley Manor was the opportunity to garden and the beautiful veggies and flowers were shared with his friends and neighbors. Richard also enjoyed being on the "Ice Cream Team," delivering treats to those who were housebound. Serving and helping others was important and enjoyable.

Richard and Vernes have been very active in their churches throughout their lives at Mayflower Church in Pacific Grove and Cypress Community Church on Monterey-Salinas Hwy. They have enjoyed the fellowship of Westminster Presbyterian Church during their time in Medford, Oregon. He was also a member of Sunrise Rotary Club of Monterey.

Richard is survived by his loving wife Vernes; brother Roy Fowler; daughter Sharron Smith (Ed), and son Richard Dann Fowler; granddaughter Amy Baj (Chris) and grandsons Peter Smith (Audrey), Jacob Fowler, and Paul Fowler; and five great-grandchildren.

No service is planned at this time. In lieu of flowers - memorial contributions may be sent to Samaritan's Purse at samaritanaspurse.org.

Paul Knostman

Paul Knostman, resident of Pebble Beach, passed away Feb 18, 2021.

Paul was born in Spokane, WA and went to Whitman College where he was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity and graduated in 1961 with a BA in Biology. After college he attended Naval Officer Candidate School in Newport, RI, which led to a commission in the US Navy. He married Victoria Durham Knostman in 1964.

He earned his MS in Environmental Studies with a subspecialty in Oceanography/Meteorology at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey. During his 20 years of active duty, he was involved in the Cuban missile blockade in 1961 and the landing of the first US ground forces in Vietnam in 1965. He was also part of the contingency operation during the instability in Greece in 1967, in the Middle East in 1968, and joint service with the UN Command in Seoul, Korea during the imposition of martial law in 1972.

After retiring from the Navy, he spent eight years as a Data Base Manager with the Marine Review Committee's San Onofre Nuclear Generating Station environmental research project. Later, he was a consulting environmental specialist and technical writer in oceanography, marine climatology, and marine biology.

He and Vicki retired in Pebble Beach in 2002. Paul loved golf and was a member of The Stillwater 9-Holers. He was a devoted volunteer at The Monterey Bay Aquarium where he worked every Thursday afternoon for almost 20 years. He is survived by his wife of 56 years, Vicki; their two children Greg Knostman and Peggy McClintick; and four grandchildren.

He was a loving, patient, and devoted husband, father, and grandfather and is immeasurably missed.

MASCOT

clubs, or organizations shall respect cultural differences and values.” The policy also prohibits the use of any race or ethnic group as a mascot or nickname and outlines the process for applying to change a mascot. While the new policy generated very little discussion at the time it was passed, it would seem the Padre — a Spaniard — would violate it, and may therefore be doomed already.

‘Mascot preference’

The mascot study group was formed the following month, and this week’s survey marks the school’s latest effort to address the issue.

It first asks whether the person participating in the survey is a CHS student, parent, alumnus, teacher or staff member, or a member of the community, and the person’s age group.

The survey then asks for the person’s “mascot preference,” with two possible answers — retain the Padre or seek out a new mascot — and a rating of “the level of your concern” about the current mascot for CHS.

The participant is then asked to indicate up to three factors that were most influential in deciding whether to support the Padre or not, ranging from things such as “the mascot is a longstanding tradition” and is “an important part of the pride of alumni,” to “it represents oppression of a minority group” and “symbolizes colonization.” Another option for objecting to the Padre mascot is that it “is not inclusive of all gender types.”

Lyons said the survey will be open until the close of business on April 21.

“In the coming month, we will also host two open forums to allow stakeholders to share their personal perspectives,” he said, with one held in person according to state and county guidelines, and the other offered virtually so that alumni who no longer live here can still participate.

He encouraged anyone with questions to reach out to him at [jl Lyons@carmelunified.org](mailto:jl Lyons@carmelunified.org).

ULRICH ‘ULI’ G. PERETZ

July 3, 1954 - March 20, 2021

On March 20, 2021, with his loved ones beside him, Ulrich G. Peretz, lost his long and hard-fought battle with lung cancer. Uli will be remembered as a father, husband, son, brother, uncle, rock and roll tour manager, Deputy Fire Marshal, storyteller, lover of life, and a great friend.

He was born in Jerusalem, Israel on July 3, 1954, to parents Andreas (born in Berlin) and Miriam (born in Jerusalem) they soon relocated to Frankfurt, Germany where Uli grew up. At age 15, Uli started working in the music industry for Fritz Rau, the largest concert promoter in Europe. He later came to work with some of the most well known rock and roll artists of our time, he toured throughout Europe and all over the world. Many of his best stories came from this time in his life.

Uli met his first wife, Susie Moon, while traveling, which brought him to live in Carmel, California in 1982. He continued working in the music industry until the mid 1990s when his son, David, was born to his second wife, Jana Brinsmead. He then decided to change careers to remain closer to his family.

Uli began studying Fire Science while working as an EMT/volunteer firefighter for Carmel and Mid Valley Fire Departments. He was eventually hired by the Redwood City Fire Department and retired in 2016 as a Deputy Fire Marshal. In 2018, he was proud to become an official US citizen.

He leaves behind his son, David Peretz; stepdaughter, Jahre Carver; fiancée of 8 years, Julie Murray; brother, Ronny Peretz; his 101-year-old mother; and a host of dear friends around the globe.

Uli’s generous heart of gold made all who met him feel welcome. His lively storytelling, warm smile and twinkle in his eye will remain with those who knew him forever.

Dear Uli, you are deeply loved and incredibly missed! Prost!

The family would like to extend a heartfelt thank you to the staff of Stanford Hospital for their years of amazing care. And to the staff of Hospice of the Central Coast for helping him with a peaceful transition.

Gifts for lung cancer research can be made to Dr. Joel Neal at makeagift.stanford.edu

If you have a photo or a story to share about Uli, please go to The Paul Mortuary website <https://www.dignitymemorial.com/obituaries/10115794> and post on Uli’s Everlasting Memory book.

School as family

FOR THE first few years of their childrens' lives, parents pretty much have a monopoly on their emotional and intellectual development. They teach them simple tasks like how to speak, the names of shapes and objects, and how to get dressed. They also provide comfort and love and start the child on the road to emotional maturity by demonstrating when it's OK to be upset, how people are supposed to react to each other, and the difference between right and wrong. They also spend a lot of time trying to teach their children not to do some of the antisocial things they were born wanting to do — like grabbing something they want or throwing fits when they don't get their way.

From birth until about to about 5 years, parents are in charge of all that and — except for ideas that come from parent-selected books and TV shows — what they teach accounts for pretty much all a child knows. For young children, their parents are their whole world.

But all that changes as soon as a child starts going to school. Instead of parents, there are teachers to handle increasingly complicated academic subjects and, even more importantly, friends who become a young person's main source of support, camaraderie and even love. Family is still very important, of course, but as a child grows, the world begins to take over, and when a young person reaches 13 or 14, parents may even find that what they say doesn't matter much anymore. Their child's education, they realize, is in everyone's hands but theirs. School and friends are what matters.

It hasn't always been this way, of course. Until the 17th century, most children never went to school at all, and illiteracy was common. Even in the United States, public schools didn't become ubiquitous until the late 19th century. Now, of course, the idea that a child starts first grade at age 6, goes to school five days a week except for vacations, and graduates from high school at 18 is so universally accepted, it's practically part of nature. Taking it away would be like taking away the atmosphere. At least, that's what we thought until the coronavirus epidemic.

Suddenly, there was no school to go to, and what took its place was terrible. Online lessons turned out to be a poor substitute for in-classroom instruction in academic subjects and provided zero interaction with friends. Many students not only felt cut off from their normal daily routines and physical environment, they felt completely isolated from the social structure they relied on to be happy. Online learning also wasn't fun.

Schools are starting to reopen now — that's great news for society, which needs an educated populace, but it's even better news for the children, who will now have a chance to return to the environment they love best. Sure, family can be nice, and sometimes school can be a pain. But saying hi to your bestie before the bell rings, joining them at lunch, and playing or hanging out together after school is what really makes life worth living.

With things getting back to normal, we're happy for many people. But most of all, we're happy for the kids.

Tree issues

Dear Editor,

I read with interest your article about the Hunter property, the cutting of the tree roots, and the accompanying fine. I have watched that home being built and I think that it is a credit to Carmel in that it is not one of the glass and steel structures that really don't fit. The Hunters seem to embrace the Carmel-style home. I am aware that someone on one of the commissions didn't like that it was white with black trim. Give me a break.

The tree program in Carmel is very interesting. Huge fines are levied for people who cut or trim the trees, even invasive species. The home right around the corner from us was dinged with large fines and was a mess before being purchased by the current owners. On the other hand, I had $3,400 damage to my automobile from one of the city's trees. I was told that damage was not covered unless the homeowner reported the tree as an issue.

I have reported the Carmel tree problem to the city and an official came out for an inspection, marked the tree for removal and assured me that any future damage would be covered by the city since I had reported it.

I was told last April that the tree would be gone by fall. In the fall I was told that it would be gone the first week of December. In December I was told it would be removed early in January. The tree is still there in April so we are coming up to the one-year anniversary.

Carmel imposes so many over-the-top fines that they certainly should have money to remove trees that they agreed are a problem. I guess the money only flows one way.

John Comer,
Carmel

Politics and the border

Dear Editor,

We are always surprised when a politician turns out to be a politician. It appears to be the case for Jimmy Panetta. Blame everything on the prior administration. Can we ever get someone to just tell us the public an unbiased truthful take on an issue? It appears not.

Since I retired, I have had more time to be educated on politics as it affects me in this great nation. Why lie about the situation at the border? It's a real disaster under the Biden administration. They have no one to blame but themselves. I'm no fan of Trump, but his policy was based on what the Border Patrol recommended. Tom Homan, the former director of the Border Patrol, has great insight on the subject.

Trump got this one right. Biden has it wrong. It's inhuman and immoral what is happening now. Transparency is a joke and non-existent under this administration.

Trump is gone. Quit blaming him.

Nature provided the setting, but these guys built the golf courses

AS YOU watch the Masters this weekend, you may hear about its original golf course architects — Bobby Jones and Alister MacKenzie.

MacKenzie in 97 Photos 1926-1934,” an expansion of a 2015 edition.

MacKenzie first came to California in January 1926 at the invitation of Pebble Beach resident Robert Hunter. Hunter, who was best known for his books on socialism, had taken up golf on the advice of a doctor. He became a passionate student of the science of course development and met MacKenzie while researching course architecture in Scotland. Hunter invited him to come and review some opportunities near San Francisco.

The timing of MacKenzie’s arrival was serendipitous. S. F. B. Morse was preparing to open Monterey Peninsula Country Club and Marion Hollins was in the planning stage of Cypress Point Club. Architect Seth Raynor, who was working on both projects, died just days prior to MacKenzie’s arrival.

After meeting with Morse and Hollins in early February, the new partnership of MacKenzie and Hunter was retained to finish the courses. In March 1926 Charles Scribner published Hunter’s newest book, “The Links.” As the first American book on the subject of golf course architecture, it immediately enhanced the team’s credentials. MacKenzie had earlier published his first book, “Golf Architecture,” in 1920 in London.

MacKenzie and Hunter developed several courses together in California. On the Peninsula, they first completed the Dunes course at MPCC, which opened in July 1926. They also redesigned the 8th and 13th holes on Pebble Beach Golf Links prior to the first professional tournament held at Pebble Beach, the $5,000 Monterey

By NEAL HOTELLING

Jones, a native of Georgia, was a successful attorney and the unquestioned greatest golfer on the planet. Building Augusta National was his dream. The year before he and MacKenzie began planning the course, Jones had done what many thought was impossible. In the single year of 1930 he won the U.S. Open, the U.S. Amateur, the British Open and the British Amateur. The feat has never been repeated.

Alister MacKenzie was a Scotsman, who, after serving in the Boer Wars, returned to Scotland and took up golf architecture. To my thinking, he was the greatest golf architect of his era. He is the only architect credited with seven courses in the Top 100 courses in America, including two in the Top 10 — Cypress Point (No. 2) and Augusta (No. 6). He assisted on at least three others on the list, and has four others ranked among the Top 100 in the World, including Australia’s Royal Melbourne (No. 7). Despite his success and fame, there were few published photos of MacKenzie until now.

The woman behind the hippo with a parasol and a red-headed mermaid

CARLAINE WILLIS, one of the original members of the Carmel Valley Art Association, has established her brand over the years as a prolific painter, and a maker of beaded jewelry, but nowadays has affixed her fascination on making three-dimensional creatures and critters using wool, felt, and beads.

trunk of my friend’s car, she accidentally slammed the lid shut on my fingertips, and I started bleeding profusely,” Willis remembered. “My friend said, ‘Well, we certainly can’t go now,’ and I said, ‘Are you kidding? When will I ever get the chance to play Pebble again for $100?’”

Willis recalls bleeding all over the first four holes of the world’s most beautiful golf course that day, but she finished the round. Did groundskeepers wonder if they had stumbled upon a crime scene? We’ll never know.

Carmel’s Artists

By DENNIS TAYLOR

Willis’ spot in the Carmel Village gallery includes a series of small, woolly adorables — bunnies, bears, dogs, ducks, a penguin, a red-haired mermaid in a string of pearls, a cowboy astride a brown-and-white pony, and a pink princess and a hippo (both carrying parasols).

“I’ve found it to be great fun, jabbing away at the wool,” she said.

Two trophies, three aces

She also uses wool to create 3D pet portraits and fuzzy bracelets — a divergence from the sparkly, beaded jewelry she typically makes.

She also paints, an art form she began learning 25 years ago. Willis tried her hand at plein-air, then ventured indoors as a studio artist.

“What is the saying? I’m interested in a lot of things, and I like to think I do some of them well,” she said. “I don’t know that I get bored, but I’m always looking for something new to trigger my interest.”

Willis also enjoys playing bridge. She bowls, she works out at a fitness center at least twice a week, and she’s an avid golfer: The Quail Lodge resident needs only to step outside her back door to find the course where she still plays regularly at 78.

Willis, in fact, is a two-time club champion at Quail, and also has scored three holes-in-one — probably due to the passion she showed one day when she got an opportunity to play Pebble Beach for $100. “We were loading our clubs into the Willis was a war baby, born in 1942 in St. Mary’s, Idaho, her mother’s hometown. Her father was a World War II bomber pilot in North Africa and Europe, and her “Air Force brat” upbringing included postwar tours in Ohio, Louisiana, and Japan.

“I actually think it was helpful that we were moving around, having to make new friends. I was an outgoing kid, never shy,” she said.

In 1961, Carline moved into an apartment complex in Menlo Park with a car full of belongings that needed to go into her new, second-floor dwelling. Stanford grad Nick Willis, a Navy veteran, gallantly helped carry her TV set up the stairs.

The next day, Nick saw Carline lounging beside the pool in her swimsuit. He watched her undo her ponytail, shake out her hair, and dive into the water. They’ve been married 59 years.

Nick, a radar engineer, joined the Defense Advanced Research Products Agency in 1977, a job that took his family of four to Washington D.C. where he helped develop stealth radar aircraft. “I used to tell everybody, ‘My husband does dirty war-related research,’” she joked. “Virtually all of it was classified.”

The torpedo factory

While living on the East Coast, 53-year-old Carline discovered the Torpedo Factory in Alexandria, Va., which, during two world wars, was exactly what the name suggests.

The factory was converted into a federal records center in 1969. In 1973, the city and the local art league acquired the site, hauled away 40 dump trucks full of debris, power-washed the interior with fire hoses, and renovated the building to create Torpedo Factory Art Center. It became a three-level studio and gallery for 225 artists, including a harpsichord maker, and the final resting place of a 21-foot-long, 3,000-pound, Mark XIV torpedo case — a housewarming present from the Navy Seabees.

“The Torpedo Factory was awesome — a lot of working artists, and a lot of foot traffic because it’s right on the waterfront in Old Town Alexandria, a cute little area with a lot of restaurants,” she said. “I was only there for a year, but I learned to work with pastels. That’s where I became enamored with making art. It was a great place to start.”

In 1994, her husband accepted a job in Santa Monica,

RACISM

Some of document mimics or draws heavily from resolutions passed by other jurisdictions, including San Bernardino County, which was the first in the state, in June 2020, to declare racism a public health crisis.

'Dismantling racism'

According to the resolution approved this week, Monterey County's population makeup is 60 percent Latino, 28 percent White and 2 percent Black. The document does not mention people of Asian heritage, who account for 6.7 percent of the county's population, according to U.S. Census data.

The resolution expresses the supervisors' determination to "actively participate" in dismantling racism in Monterey County by "building and strengthening alliances with other organizations that are confronting racism," "working with community partners to establish health and racial equity as part of the county's mission, vision, and goals," and to continue to train the county's staff on "implicit bias, cultural humility and racial equity to encourage equity in the workplace and create a space for addressing how historic practices led to current systemic issues."

All five county supervisors praised the document and voted for it.

District 2 Supervisor John Phillips, 78, recounted the overt racial discrimination he witnessed decades ago while stationed in Louisiana. While conceding that people his age are often unaware of systemic racism, he said he's been made more aware of it recently.

"It's important that we do this," the former Monterey County Superior Court judge said. "You would think it should be, by this time, unnecessary." And 5th District Supervisor Mary Adams said, "It's just been an honor to endorse this resolution."

Supervisor Chris Lopez, who represents District 3, said there are "still things within our policies that we need to fix every single day" to eliminate racism, but he did not offer any examples.

"I'm proud to support this resolution, because when we look at the work that's left to do, it's still a difficult task that lies ahead of us," Lopez said.

One of the ills attributed to racism, the supervisors said, is "geographic segregation that disproportionately exposes people of color to lead poisoning, poor air quality, inadequate nutrition, deficient public transportation, inadequate educational and economic opportunities and under-resourced recreational and healthcare facilities."

And while there is a critical need for affordable housing in Monterey County — which is hamstrung primarily by the lack of water availability and apparent indifference by elected officials to do anything about it — the resolution does not offer any way to address the need, such as changing zoning laws to accommodate multi-family housing in the Monterey Peninsula.

The document does suggest, however, that racism is one reason the county's White residents are more likely to be homeowners and are in better health, for instance, while Hispanic and Black people are more apt to become severely ill and die from coronavirus.

Black and Latino "homeownership rate in Monterey County is 38 and 39 percent, respectively, but is 60 percent for Whites," according to the document, which also notes that 10 percent of Latino and 11 percent of Black seventh- and eighth-graders are suspended from school compared to 5 percent of White students.

The document goes on to say that 21 percent of Latinos and 37 percent of Black students in Monterey County are "socially and emotionally prepared" for kindergarten, compared to 43 percent of White students.

The document blames only racism — and not any other social factors — for the disparities.

The Pine Cone asked 4th District Supervisor and board chair Wendy Root Askew what, if any, changes should be made to the county's general plan and what new policies and ordinances should be implemented to achieve the resolution's goals.

She did not respond.

FREEDOM

Purple Tier for three weeks, and there are strong signs of a tourism rebound in places like Cannery Row, downtown Carmel and on the highway to Big Sur. But despite the loosening of business restrictions, cases have continued to decline.

“Unlike when the restrictions were lifted before, there are people who are vaccinated now,” said Monterey County Health Department spokeswoman Karen Smith.

While the Orange Tier allows for more freedom, she warned county residents to remain cautious.

“The public health practices of wearing a mask, staying home when you are sick, washing your hands frequently, watching your distance and getting tested when needed are still important to keep the numbers low,” Smith said. “Get vaccinated when it is your turn.”

Many Monterey County public schools are reopening for in-class instruction this week and next week, which is great news for parents and students. Health officials say the likelihood of coronavirus transmission in a school setting is low.

So much vaccine has become available in the county, Natividad Medical Center announced Wednesday that it had several hundred vaccine openings this weekend for county residents 16 years and older, even though eligibility for that group doesn’t start until next week. By 9 p.m. Wednesday, the appointments were filled.

Fewer vaccines

However, just as anyone 16 and older will be able to get the jab starting April 15, a county employee warned of a vaccine deficit in Monterey County. Health department epidemiologist Kristy Michie said Wednesday that the state Department of Public Health informed California counties that the state would receive 400,000 fewer vaccine doses next week.

“That is really unfortunate,” Michie told the Monterey County Board of Supervisors. “Counties across California will see a decrease in their allocation next week.”

It’s not known yet how many fewer vaccine doses Monterey County will receive, however.

Smith told The Pine Cone the reduction in vaccine allocations for the week of April 12 is related to manufacturing issues by vaccine provider Johnson & Johnson. The company announced last week that it had to discard a batch of vaccines.

Meanwhile, Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula is seeking volunteers for its vaccination efforts. The hospital already relies on dozens of volunteers for Covid-19 inoculation support.

“We need people who are qualified to administer vaccines, as well as non-clinical people who can handle the very active roles needed in other parts of the clinic operation,” hospital spokeswoman Brenda Moore said. “As vaccine supply increases, we will be able to operate more often and therefore need more volunteers.”

Restrictions lifted

State Health and Human Services Agency Secretary Dr. Mark Ghaly told news reporters Tuesday that because vaccination rates are steady and infection rates and hospitalization rates are much lower, he expects most Covid restrictions on businesses to end by June 15. Newsom reiterated the statement in a news conference.

“The color-coded system as it’s devised now will no longer be in effect after June 15, provided all Californians over 16 who want to get vaccinated can get vaccinated,” Ghaly said.

He also said for the “Green Tier” to take effect, the low levels of disease and hospitalizations must continue. Before the June target date, Ghaly said the state would continue to urge residents to get vaccinated.

“If we see any concerning rise in our hospitalizations, we will take the necessary precautions,” he said. “But right now, we are hopeful from what we have seen.”

While Ghaly said there are “currently no plans by the state to have a vaccine passport system,” some businesses will likely require proof of vaccination.

Motorsports Gathering. “The Peninsula can’t contend with two years of no Car Week. Yes, we’re going to do it, and we’re looking forward to doing it the safest way we can and all the positive economic impacts that will have on the Peninsula.”

A study conducted by the Monterey County Convention & Visitors Bureau based on 2014 data indicated the week generates $53.5 million for the county as some 85,000 people flock to the area to attend numerous events, stay in hotels, dine in local restaurants and shop in downtown stores.

“We are really excited. The news for California is terrific,” said Doug Freedman, who hosts the Concours on the Avenue with his wife, Genie. “So many individuals, families and businesses need the best possible changes going forward. We are working each day to be ready with Concours on the Avenue Tuesday, Aug. 10.”

P.B. planning

Of course, all organizers are planning to ensure their events are as safe as possible.

“We’re trying to have all the right safety measures in place and be ready to pivot as restrictions change,” Button said.

The Pebble Beach Concours usually occupies the 18th Hole at Pebble Beach, along with smaller adjacent areas, but this year will be more spread out, “so that we can provide a little more distancing for everyone, so people feel safe and comfortable,” she added.

Since this will be its 75th year, the Concours invited previous Best of Show winners to bring their cars back to Pebble Beach, and Button said about three dozen will participate — which means the Concours will have even more cars than usual this year.

European lockdowns amidst another surge in coronavirus cases, along with travel restrictions, have affected overseas entrants, though, as has the fact that many restoration shops in those countries were closed during the shutdowns, so some show cars just aren’t ready. Complicating matters further is that air and sea freight have also been affected by the virus.

“Some of these cars are going to need to go on the water very soon, and that’s a pinch for them, not knowing whether travel restrictions will be lifted,” she said. “Putting a car in freight in April or May while not knowing if you’ll be able to go or not must be a hard decision.”

So far, out of the 37 people planning to ship their cars to the Concours from overseas, at least 10 have formally asked to be on the field in 2022 instead, according to Button. But a long waiting list of collectors based in the United States ensures there will be no shortage of automotive beauty come Concours Sunday.

Button said she’s also seeing a lot of pent-up enthusiasm from spectators, people showing their cars, and sponsors — including auto manufacturers who enjoyed surprisingly good sales last year.

Everyone “can’t wait to be back on the Monterey Peninsula,” she said.

In addition to the Sunday event, Concours organizers are planning on holding the Tour d’Elegance Aug. 12, though without its traditional lunch stop in downtown Carmel. The Classic Car Forums, Retro-Auto memorabilia sale and Gooding & Company’s Pebble Beach Auctions will happen, too.

At the track

At Laguna Seca, Barry Toepke said he and other race organizers are working out their protocols for all of their events, including July’s MotoAmerica motorcycle races and August’s Pre-Reunion and Rolex Monterey Motorsports Reunion races.

“Some of the events are saying you have to have a negative test 72 hours before arriving or a vaccination card,” he said. “Whether we implement all of that is to be determined, but it’s stuff we’re working on.”

Toepke is planning for capacity restrictions of 25 percent to 50 percent, though Laguna Seca is large enough to accommodate a lot of people.

“We’re planning on the worst-case scenario of restrictions, and if mid-June comes and they lift everything, then hooray!” he said. “We have people chomping at the bit to come, and we certainly are high on the fact that August Car Week is going to happen.”

Fewer restrictions

Gordon and Molly McCall visited the huge Barrett-Jackson car auctions in Arizona last month just to see how such events are being held in a state with far fewer restrictions than California. In fact, Arizona Gov. Doug Ducey announced at the auctions that he was lifting the state’s mask mandate.

“It was so nice to see car people getting together and not doing it virtually,” Gordon McCall said. “We weren’t really looking for ideas, we just wanted to get a sense of what it felt like to be at a car event again.”

McCall said people are definitely interested in spending money on collector cars, which was “a good thing to see,” given the number of auctions held on the Peninsula during the week.

Back home, he and representatives of the Concours, the track and the Quail have been holding weekly Zoom calls to discuss the best and safest ways to host their events this year — a collaborative spirit that hasn’t been seen in the past.

“To me, it’s a breath of fresh air — just the idea that we’re all talking about what’s best for the community, for the locals, for the charities, for the people responsible for making Car Week happen, and for the people who attend: the car owners and ticket holders,” he said.

For their event at the Monterey Jet Center Aug. 11, the McCalls plan to lay out all the cars, aircraft, food, wine and entertainment on the tarmac, so guests can be outdoors as much as possible, rather than in the hangars. “We have no idea what people are going to be telling us to do,” he said. “You play by the rules of today.”

Meanwhile, in the City of Carmel, community activities director Ashlee Wright said she’s not clear what the loosening of restrictions means for the city’s events, including Concours on the Avenue.

“If the tiers all go away, then is it a go for gatherings?” she asked. “I’m not sure if we’ll be able to move forward.”

Because events like Concours on the Avenue take place on downtown streets and in the park, she said, “it makes ensuring people are wearing masks and social distancing much more challenging.”

Wright said she and the community activities commission, which oversees events and is now meeting twice a month rather than the usual once, are trying to be flexible.

“We want to be as nimble as we can,” she said. “It’s a transition year.”

She also said she’s talking to Genie and Doug Freedman weekly to discuss what their event might look like “in this odd year of Covid.”

Dear Larry, How has the pandemic affected the auction business? - Fred in Monterey

Dear Fred, We of course follow all COVID procedures, but we have also had to change with the new normal by offering more buying opportunities in person as well as online. The pandemic has caused many people to rethink their lives and that has kept up very busy. Please see our website for all upcoming real estate and personal property auctions. Even though we have auctions through the west, we have an exciting auction in San Jose with a home that includes a 10-car garage, Indian and Harley motorcycles, and Willy trucks and cars. We have many more in the works, but these are the auctions set on the calendar, so it’s important to check the website from time to time.

Open, played in December 1926.

They then revamped the Claremont course and began work on the Meadow Club in Marin County. In October 1927, their focus returned to the Monterey Peninsula as they broke ground at Cypress Point. Hunter was the on-site man, while MacKenzie traveled the world, providing vision for many other course designs with other partners. Shipping magnate Roger Lapham, a founding member of Cypress Point (and future mayor of San Francisco) declared "MacKenzie seems to have mastered the art of making everything look natural."

In December 1927, the United States Golf Association selected Pebble Beach for the 1929 U.S. Amateur. Lapham, as the western vice president of the association, chose the team to prepare Pebble Beach for the national championship. He selected Hunter and H. Chandler Egan to lead the job. So, Hunter was working on rebuilding several holes on the Pebble Beach Golf Links at the same time he was finishing work on Cypress Point. Egan, a former U.S. Amateur champion, had designed several courses in the Pacific Northwest, where he had a primary residence. He built a second home in Pebble Beach in the 1920s.

Heroic shots

While there is no specific evidence, MacKenzie likely collaborated on the Pebble Beach work in 1928. The forward bunker on the par-3 12th is a good example of MacKenzie's work. He was brilliant at camouflage, and the only real purpose of that bunker is to fool the eye from the tee. Egan briefly partnered with MacKenzie after Hunter retired in 1930, reinforcing this belief.

As Cypress Point entered the grow-in phase, Hollins called on MacKenzie for another project. She was launching a new residential-resort community near Santa Cruz called Pasatiempo. MacKenzie designed the course there in June 1928, and it was completed in time for a September 1929 opening. This brings us back to Bobby Jones.

Barbara Briggs-Anderson

Jones came to Pebble Beach in 1929, aiming for a three-peat as the defending champion of the U.S. Amateur, an event he won in 1924, 1925, 1927 and 1928. He was also the reigning U.S. Open champion, having won in July 1929 (as well as 1923 and 1926). Everyone was sure Jones would win at Pebble Beach, and fans were stunned when he lost his first 18-hole match and was out of the competition. Jones took advantage of the opportunity and played Cypress Point, open for barely a year.

Asked afterward which was his favorite, he astutely commented, "Pebble Beach is probably the better championship course, but Cypress Point is the one I'd rather have in my backyard."

After the end of the 1929 U.S. Amateur, Jones joined Hollins at Pasatiempo for the grand opening of that course. After experiencing yet another wonderful MacKenzie design, he arranged for MacKenzie to help him build Augusta National.

MacKenzie made Pasatiempo his home during his last few years. With the onset of the Depression, new design opportunities became harder to find. He and Hunter built a few holes for the Shore Course at MPCC, but to MacKenzie's frustration, Morse could not justify completing the course.

MacKenzie wrote another book in which he laid out his complete philosophy of golf course design, construction and play, but it was not published. Just a few months before Jones hosted the first Masters championship, MacKenzie died at Pasatiempo on Jan. 9, 1934.

His manuscript was lost and forgotten for nearly 60 years. I was part of a small group gathered at the Lodge at Pebble Beach when MacKenzie's grandson, Raymond Haddock, first showed the forgotten handwritten manuscript. It was finally published in 1995 as "The Spirit of St. Andrews." MacKenzie's wit is evident when speaking of water hazards: "Being a Scotsman, I am naturally opposed to water in its undiluted state." He then makes a case for requiring heroic shots over water, such as those required on the ocean holes at Cypress Point.

Briggs-Anderson provides us with a wonderful photo journal utilizing historic images by Graham to illustrate MacKenzie's life. Available for Kindle through Amazon, the book includes some of his wisdom on the topic of golf, and represents the largest known collection of photos of MacKenzie. It also includes dramatic photos by Graham showing MacKenzie, playing every hole at Cypress Point and many holes at Pasatiempo. If you have an interest in early golf, or just in beautiful black-and-white photography, be sure to get this e-book.

Sadness and sorrow: Victory for Padres brings two-game season to close

CARMEL HIGH football players found a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow last week, and it was either half-empty or half-full, depending on your perspective in the year of the pandemic, when interscholastic high school sports have been all but nonexistent.

at least not while there's still time left on the scoreboard clock.

But the fact that a football game was being played at all was a triumph in itself.

"Right now, I'm just thinking about our principal, Jon Lyons, and some of the other administrators who made this happen. They found a way to say, 'Yes,' when the rules of the shutdown have said, 'No,' for so long," said Padres head coach Golden Anderson, who is also the athletic director at Carmel High. "We all wanted to make something happen for these kids and our community that other communities could not. That's what I what I'm most proud of today."

The pandemic has likely robbed the vast majority of senior athletes — Posadas included — of their chance to play collegiate sports next season on an athletic scholarship. He's applied and been accepted to some universities, but probably will have to try out for football at the school of his choice as a walk-on (a non-scholarship athlete), lengthening the odds that he'll make the roster.

"I don't want to step off this field right now, but I just can't express how thankful I am that these guys — my

One thing is certain, though: It was a whole lot better than nothing.

The Padres beat Pacific Grove 43-12 in 75-degree heat to hang onto that treasured traveling trophy known as The Shoe, a game played at Carmel High in front of an audience that was meager by design. The public wasn't invited. Every player on each team was allowed just three tickets for family members. There was no marching band. The Breakers brought cheerleaders, Carmel didn't. Coaches, game officials, athletic trainers, spectators, and the media wore masks. There were no handshakes among opposing co-captains and officials at the pregame coin flip, and only fist-bumps when the two teams filed past each other in a showing of postgame sportsmanship.

Two-game season

The game ended a two-game football season for Carmel, which lost at home the previous Saturday to King City, 58-28, after three weeks of practice. The visiting Breakers, meanwhile, were making their season debut after just two weeks of preparation. They played their second game — their season finale — on Wednesday against Greenfield.

The 73rd edition of The Shoe was predictably ragged — penalties, blown coverages, missed tackles, fumbles, and other mistakes characteristic of an early-season game — but the teams played with a passion befitting arch rivals who traditionally don't like each other all that much —

'Emotional'

The bittersweet aspect of a two-game football season was palpable for the players — especially Carmel High's seniors, who were wearing helmets and pads for the final time as Padres.

"This is definitely emotional for me, especially standing here right now, looking out over the hills and everything, realizing this is the last time I'll wear this uniform," said 6-foot-4 wide receiver Antonio Posadas, a four-year varsity player who caught three passes for 79 yards — all for touchdowns. "Obviously I was hoping to have a full senior season, and maybe attract the attention of some college scouts, you know? But it's all right. I can walk away knowing I played as hard as I could as a senior, even though we only had a few weeks."

coaches and teammates — helped put me in a position to hopefully succeed at the next level,” said J.T. Byrne, who played well enough last year, as a junior, to earn a scholarship from Oregon State University, where he’ll play tight end in the fall.

“This was definitely a surreal experience, playing in front of a small crowd, everybody showing up wearing masks, and all of that,” added Byrne, a co-captain who made four catches for 83 yards as a receiver, and also threw a 41-yard pass to Tristan Guenther for Carmel’s first touchdown in his only series of the game at quarterback. “But I’m so just so glad we got this opportunity — not only for our seniors, but also for everybody else. It’s a testament to our coaches, the administration, and a lot of other people that we actually got to play in a Shoe game this year. Who would’ve thought?”

Byrne and Posada were among 14 seniors who were on the field for the final time as Padres.

That list also includes:

- Co-captain Benicio Cristofalo (an all-league receiver last year, injured in practice this season)

- Guenther (2 receptions, 51 yards, including the 41-yard TD strike from Byrne)
- Carlos Zarazua (who ran for a 17-yard TD in the second quarter)
- Yungmin Chee (whose crunching block helped Posada score a second-quarter TD)
- Chris Sanchez (who played bone-rattling defense at linebacker, and ran seven times for 65 yards – all but one play of a third-quarter series -- including a 1-yard TD plunge, and also ran for the 2-point conversion)
- Ronan Loberg (the starting right tackle)
- Justus Rees (the starting center)
- Louis Verduzco (who sacked PG’s quarterback on the second play of the game)
- Jaydee Hoover (a two-year starter on the defensive line)
- Nick Yerace (a two-year starter at cornerback and special teams)

Barnyard launches music series, guitarist up next

NOW THAT live music is been deemed safe by state officials, it can be heard at a number of local sites, including The Barnyard, where a live music series kicked off Saturday with a show by singer-songwriter Fred McCarty.

The shopping center's garden-like setting provides a colorful backdrop for performers.

On a High Note

By CHRIS COUNTS

"The series is running through September," said Barnyard general manager Marilyn Schultz. "John Kelly Productions is putting together a lineup for us."

This Saturday (April 10), guitarist John Sherry will work his fingerpicking magic in The Barnyard's garden from noon to 3 p.m. The longtime local instrumentalist brings together rock, blues and folk. "I've been making my living as a one-man acoustic guitar band for the last seven years or so, and it's fun and extremely challenging, which keeps me interested and growing as an artist," Sherry explains on his website.

Upcoming shows include singer and guitarist Kip Alpert, who plays April 17, and pianist Michael Martinez, who performs April 24.

The Barnyard is located just off Highway 1 between Carmel Valley Road and Rio Road. "Just look for the windmill," Schultz said.

As new members pour in, photo center unveils new show

IT'S TOO early to say how the pandemic and its associated shutdown will impact the viability of the Monterey Peninsula's arts groups, but at least one of them has been happily overwhelmed with new members.

It turns out that a busy slate of internet shows and talks has made The Center for Photographic Art a hit with fine art photographers from far away.

Art Roundup

By CHRIS COUNTS

"Our membership has almost quadrupled since the pandemic hit," said Ann Jastrab, executive director of center. "Our membership has gone from being fairly regional to international. The majority of our programming is free for members, so there were a lot perks to become a member during the pandemic."

The group's growing membership will be on display when the center unveils its annual Members Show. The center received 2,100 entries from as far away as New Zealand and Austria. Out of those entries, juror Susan Burnstone whittled the field down to 95 finalists. Forty-five of

Golf without going anywhere, a fun new shop, and a chance to win a Jeep

WHEN WAS the last time you did something new? With pandemic-related lockdowns restricting people's activities and stifling business, it's probably been awhile. But now that the Links Club has finally opened in Carmel Plaza, you have the chance.

Owned and operated by April Montgomery, the project has been three years in the making, due to setbacks from the virus and other gremlins, and the business opened — fittingly, she said — on April 1, with games, beer, wine and food.

The Links Club features the Monterey Peninsula's first golf simulators allowing golfers, would-be golfers and those who just want to have some fun trying to hit a little white ball with a stick to "play" any of more than 100 of the world's most notable golf courses, as well as try their hand at competitions like longest ball, closest to the pin, and bullseye. And for some of those games, those who don't want to look at the simulated green beauty of a golf course can pick an Old West town, a cityscape, and even Jurassic, complete with fighting dinosaurs and flowing lava. (Hint: Hit your ball in the lava, and your turn is over.)

'A cool deal'

The new spot, which was built in the former Coldwater Creek clothing store location, is equipped with a half-dozen bays, each of which can accommodate up to six people who take turns hitting the ball. Montgomery chose the Trackman system for the simulators, and a special camera tracks the trajectory of each hit, with the graphics on the large fabric screen at the back of the bay showing the ball's simulated path as it flies and lands — whether on the fairway, in the rough, or on top of a skyscraper. A private room at the back can be used for groups of up to 25 people.

On Monday night, most of the six bays were filled with local caddies whom Montgomery invited to give the place a go. Among them was longtime Pebble Beach caddie Josh Fisher, who said afterward that he's sure he'll go back.

"For a golfer, it's a really cool deal," he said. "Using Trackman is a great call. If one wanted to go spend an hour in there just to figure out stuff like clubhead speed and all that technical stuff, you can do that, not to mention that you can play almost any course you want."

And, of course, the Links Club has food and drink to make it all more fun. A bar at the back features 10 good local beers on draft, a couple more in bottle and a few ciders, as well as wine by the glass and bottle. It doesn't have a full liquor license, so the cocktails are made with Soju spirits, which are distilled from rice and barley, and often enjoyed with meals in Asian countries the way wine and beer are here. State liquor laws expressly allow restaurants that only have beer-and-wine licenses to serve it.

The storefront couldn't accommodate a full kitchen, so Montgomery had to be creative. She hired a chef and developed a menu that doesn't require a large fryer or grill, since the cooking area doesn't have the exhaust hood required for most hot cooking. Cheese and charcuterie plates are logical, of course, and so is a daily soup. She and the chef added to that truffled deviled eggs, flatbread, buffalo chicken and vegetarian lettuce cups that are served cold, and — in celebration of this week's beloved Masters golf tournament at Augusta National in Georgia — pimento cheese sandwiches three ways. The menu also offers several tasty desserts.

Considering it just opened, the Links wines by the glass run $12 to $15, and wines by the bottle cost $39 to $169. Cocktails are $12.

Montgomery said she also created the place to be a fun hangout for golfers and nongolfers alike, and there's plenty of space for people who are not playing. A ping-pong table and numerous TVs offer additional entertainment — but grabbing a beer and watching people play fake golf is great, too.

Fisher said he's sure that, if properly run, the new Links Club will "make a mint," and he said he found the staff "very friendly and knowledgeable."

For more information and reservations — which run from $65 for one up to $170 for six people for an hour — visit linkclubgolf.com. Club fittings, golf lessons and clinics with a PGA pro, apparel and other goods and services are also available, and for those who know they'll be there a lot, charter memberships offer discounts and other bonuses.

Social Hour

A store "focused on the art of home entertaining, with an emphasis on the essentials for a classic cocktail hour," is set to open in the former Jones & Terwilliger Galleries space in Jody LeTowt's building on the north side of Sixth Avenue between Dolores and San Carlos. (The gallery is now next door.) The planning department approved Karen and Eric Baymiller's business license, and according to their paperwork filed with the city, they hope to open Social Hour next month.

In the description of their new store, which will also have a presence online at socialhourcarmel.com once it's up and running, the Baymillers said they will carry barware such as shakers, jiggers, mixing glasses and other "tools, toys and accessories," as well as "every type of glass for any type of drink." In addition, Social Hour will sell "hostware" like coasters, napkins and other "entertaining essentials for your social hour," and non-alcoholic cocktail-making essentials such as bitters, syrups and garnishes.

The pair said they plan to stock their store with products that meet one or more of the following criteria: locally made, not imported, organic/sustainable, high-quality design, fair trade, and limited production.

"We are local residents who are passionate about our Carmel-by-the-Sea community," they said in their application. "After successful careers in business finance and entrepreneurial endeavors, we are excited to share Social Hour with locals and visitors alike."

Rancho Cielo raffles Jeep

Due to the pandemic, the nonprofit Salinas-based Rancho Cielo Youth Campus didn't have its annual Culinary Roundup fundraiser this year. Instead, it's offering raffle tickets for the chance to win a new Jeep Wrangler, which includes a lap at Laguna Seca, dinner at Anton & Michel, and a pair of gold earrings made by jeweler K Kocek. Runner-up prizes are cooking demos with various notable local chefs, like Colin Moody, Cal Stamenov and Soerke Peters, and a two-night stay at the Aria Los Vegas resort, with dinner for two.

Raffle tickets are $150 apiece or four for $500, and the drawing will be done during a virtual event scheduled for May 16 at 5 p.m. KSBW anchorman Dan Green will serve as the host, with appearances from Rancho Cielo founder and retired judge John Phillips, and students. Cardinale Automotive Group is donating the Jeep.

wineries from throughout the state and across the globe, with 18 judges tasked with analyzing all of them.

Director Rich Cook said the De Tierra syrah shone as the best of the 69 wines from Monterey County that were entered in the competition, including a few from the Santa Lucia Highlands, Arroyo Seco and Carmel Valley.

“The wine that wins the Best of Monterey is the top scoring wine from grapes sourced from Monterey County,” Cook explained. “In the event of a tie for the high score, the tied wines are ‘tasted off’ side by side, and a winner is declared.”

The competition’s Wine of the Year was Thomas T Thomas Vineyards 2017 reserve pinot noir from the Anderson Valley, and its Winery of the Year was V. Sattui in Napa. The Spirit of the Year, meanwhile, was William Rose Indiana Bourbon Whiskey Batch No. 1.

Other top awards included Breathless nonvintage Blanc de Blancs Sonoma County for Best of Show Sparkling Wine, Seaglass 2019 rosé and Oak Farms Vineyards 2020 rosé for Best of Show Rosé, Grape Creek Vineyards 2020 pinot grigio (Texas) and McBride Systems Collection 2020 sauvignon blanc (New Zealand) for Best of Show White Wine, and Navarro Vineyards 2019 late harvest riesling as Best of Show Dessert Wine.

For a complete list of all the winners, go to monterey-winecompetition.com.

■ A little more help

To help restaurants, most wineries and other liquor purveyors save a little cash, a state relief package signed by Gov. Gavin Newsom waives renewal fees for most Alcoholic Beverage Control licensees, as long as they were in business from at least March 1, 2020, through Dec. 31, 2020, and their “primary operation was disrupted by health and safety restrictions imposed in response to the Covid-19 pandemic.”

Businesses can request a one-year fee waiver annually through Feb. 28, 2023, by filing the appropriate ABC form before their current licenses expire. Owners can verify whether or not they’re eligible by visiting abc.ca.gov/law-and-policy/coronavirus19/renewal-fee-waiver/verify-eligibility.

where Carlaine furthered her education at the Brentwood Art Center. They retired to Carmel Valley in late 1997.

“When we got here, I couldn’t find a pastels teacher, and wound up taking lessons from (Carmel Art Association painters) Dick Crispo and Mark Farina, who introduced me to oils,” she said.

With the picturesque Monterey Peninsula as her muse, Willis became a plein-air landscape artist, joining the Artist Loft on Cannery Row in 2004. “I was sorry when it closed in 2006, as I had done quite well there with my sales,” she said.

The Valley Girls Gallery

That same year, Willis founded a brand-new business in Carmel Valley Village — the Valley Girls Gallery — in the Center Street Marketplace. She wandered inside to show her paintings to proprietor Shelley Aliotti, who immediately deemed them worthy of sharing her limited wall space with works by cartoonist Bill Bates, ceramicist/watercolorist Karuna Licht, and painters Mireille Barmann and Patty Gaglioti.

In 2011, Aliotti and her husband, John, moved a few doors away to a much larger space in the same shopping center, opened the Carmel Valley Art Association, and took the Valley Girls artists with them. The CVAA now showcases the work of almost 40 artists, according to its website.

Current-day artists, including Willis, take turns greeting visitors at the gallery every day (some make their art onsite), and enjoy festive get-togethers in non-Covid times, creating an unusually warm camaraderie among the group’s members.

“I have very much enjoyed being part of the gallery, especially with Shelley and John, and the other artists. I enjoy the other artists, and I’ve really missed our gatherings for potlucks and open-house events,” Willis said. “I’m hoping all of that is going to start up again very soon.”

Carlaine and Nick have two children, Sherene Gravette and Gregory Willis, and five grandchildren, ages 18-23. “They’re all on the East Coast, and visits have been greatly missed this past year-and-a-half due to the Covid situation,” she said.

Visit the Carmel Valley Art Association (open 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily) at 2 Chambers Lane in Carmel Valley Village to see Willis’ work.

Images of her art can be viewed on the gallery’s Facebook page.

for a loss, plus several quarterback pressures)

Carmel's Junior quarterback Tristan Staehle, a first-year starter, completed 10 of 14 passes for 169 yards and three touchdowns. He was intercepted once.

Also notable is that junior placekicker Elle Bohlman became the first female in school history to start a Shoe game. Bohlman kicked off seven times — once to the end zone for a touchback and successfully booted five conversions, a county record for a female kicker.

The Padres' roster included 20 freshmen and 15 other first-year football players, most of whom got into the game.

Although the Breakers scored first, and their sophomore quarterback, Cameron Johnson, ran brilliantly at times, Carmel led 35-6 by halftime, and the game ended early by mutual consent. The victory was Carmel's sixth in a row (and 11th in 12 years) in The Shoe game. The Padres lead the series 38-33-2.

those images will be displayed in the center, while the other 50 will be shown online.

“It’s a really diverse show, with some really crazy sculptural work, along with silver and gelatin prints, and some interesting digital work,” Jastrab said. “It’s a good survey of every genre of photography.”

Three thousand dollars in cash prizes will be handed out Saturday at 4 p.m. when Jastrab and Burnstine host a virtual reception. The show will be on display through May 9. For more details, visit www.photography.org.

Located in Sunset Center at San Carlos and Ninth, the gallery is open Wednesday through Sunday from noon to 4 p.m.

Painters visit ‘Places’

In a new show opening this week at Carmel Art Association, a trio of painters — Stan Robbins, Tim Sloan and Michel Tsouris — present “Places.”

“Everywhere we look in this world we receive messages in the shapes, colors, textures, scents, sounds, and memories of the places we inhabit,” Tsouris explained. “The world is alive and in conversation with us. Every place I visit and each landscape I view reminds me of this connection.”

Printmaker Susan Giacometti has long been drawn to water, as her new display, “Along the Waterfront,” attests.

“I am awed by the ocean,” she said. “I love boats and harbors, and industries that require boats. Likewise, Monterey’s Cannery Row has always fascinated me, both as a place and as an era. I am particularly fond of the women who worked the canning line, standing tirelessly in their gloves and boots with that awful smell until every sardine was gone.”

Also new at the downtown gallery is “Flowers and Ladie” by painters Helene Goldstein and Michie Long.

“Helene delivers large, stylized florals, while Michie captures mythical maidens riding bareback, conversing softly, or dancing together in the woods,” the CAA’s Sally Aberg added. “The common thread between their two bodies of work is always rich, vibrant color.”

The shows continue through May 4. Located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth, gallery is open Thursdays through Mondays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and by appointment. Call (831) 250-3347 or visit www.carmelart.org.

Saying goodbye to one of the sweetest ladies I've ever known

AS WE become protected by the vaccines, we should not forget the trauma the coronavirus pandemic is leaving in its wake. The number of deaths is staggering. Thousands of businesses will never reopen. A school year has been lost. And long-term damage has been done to the health of many who became seriously ill with Covid-19.

A stat that can get overlooked is the effect the virus had on senior citizens who lived alone, even if they never caught it. Disasters such as earthquakes, hurricanes, and fires can bring us together. The coronavirus drove us apart.

I met Gloria Valentino four years ago. She wrote to tell me how much she enjoyed one of my columns. An email correspondence resulted. Eventually, we met for coffee, and a friendship developed.

Time and treasure

Gloria moved here from Chicago 10 years ago. She enjoyed life with friends and basked in the Monterey Peninsula's beauty. While in Chicago, she spent much of her life helping people, giving her time and treasure to anyone who was lucky enough to know her. She worked as a life coach for the Salvation Army, where she helped parolees integrate back into society. She taught literacy and writing classes that helped them get new jobs or reclaim jobs they had before being incarcerated. She never married but was the favorite aunt of many nieces and nephews.

Her good friend, Irene Long, told me about Gloria's strong Catholic faith. "God was on her speed dial and answered her prayers for others," she said.

She augmented her small pension and Social Security by working in the gift shop at the Carmel Mission. Anyone who visited the gift shop would have been charmed by her graciousness, and her ability to make them feel welcome. Children, especially, came under her spell. Friends described her as the Mission's Pied Piper, because little kids flocked to her, wrapping themselves around her legs or waiting to receive a hug.

Sadly, the pandemic had a catastrophic effect on Gloria. The lockdowns ended her job at the gift shop. Social distancing forced her to become so isolated, it bordered on solitary confinement. One of her nieces, Roseann Adams, said it was as if Gloria's life-force was depleted from months of isolation, even as her other health problems caused a steady physical decline.

I learned all this from Roseann and her brother, Vito

POLICE LOG

FRIDAY, MARCH 26

Pacific Grove: Theft of tabs from a vehicle parked on Forest Lodge Road. Unknown date of theft at this time.

Carmel area: Welfare check on an adult at a residence on Willow Place.

Carmel Valley: Report of suspicious circumstances on Carmel Valley Road involving a 14-year-old female.

Pacific Grove: Vehicle was damaged in a business parking lot on Forest Avenue. Person responsible is unknown.

Pacific Grove: Family quarrel due to alcohol on McFarland at 2256 hours. A 51-year-old female was arrested for public intoxication and transported to county jail.

Carmel area: Loud music complaint at a residence on San Juan Road.

SATURDAY, MARCH 27

Carmel-by-the-Sea: DUI arrest of a 28-year-old self-employed male from Salinas at Third and Santa Fe at 0107 hours. He was housed at county jail.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female reported she arrived to work on Dolores north of Sixth with her credit card at 1010 hours. After working for approximately one hour, she checked and found her credit card was missing from her jacket pocket. She believed her credit card was stolen. Through investigation, it was determined this was not plausible. This incident report is for information only, and the female was provided information on how to cancel her credit card.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A dog-vs.-dog bite incident reported on Ocean west of Scenic.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on private property on Seventh Avenue. Vehicle was drivable.

Pacific Grove: An ID was found at an apartment complex on Pine Avenue. Efforts to contact the owner were unsuccessful. Item will be held for safekeeping.

Pacific Grove: Report of fraud on Lighthouse Avenue involving unemployment benefits. Possibly related to a recent data breach at a bank. No suspect identified, and the report is for informational purposes.

Pebble Beach: A woman asked that deputies conduct a welfare check on her adult son at a residence on Portola Road.

Carmel area: A subject on Mission Fields Road was found in violation of her probation and court orders. The 60-year-old female was arrested.

Carmel area: Shoplifting reported at the Crossroads.

Carmel Valley: Deputies responded to numerous reports of loud music at a residence on Paso del Rio.

Carmel Valley: Deputies responded to a dispute between a husband and wife on Via Contenta.

SUNDAY, MARCH 28

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Residential structure fire at Casanova and 12th.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fraud/scam reported on Dolores north of 12th.

Pacific Grove: Theft reported on Lighthouse Avenue.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Per a restraining order, two firearms were turned over for safekeeping. A Department of Justice database search of guns registered to the subject showed neither gun was registered.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject reported losing his wallet on March 26 somewhere in the city.

Pacific Grove: Subjects tampering with a vehicle on Shell Avenue at 0334 hours.

Pacific Grove: Subject reported his vehicle was stolen from Marine Street sometime overnight.

Pacific Grove: Report of two unconfined dogs attacking a leashed dog on Austin Avenue.

Pacific Grove: Dispatched to a past-tense hit-and-run on Forest Avenue with no suspect information.

Carmel Valley: Deputies responded to a subject on Carmel Valley Road who needed medical assistance.

Comes, who are among the nieces and nephews who tried to take care of Gloria from 2,000 miles away.

Roseann flew here in December to see how Gloria was doing and found her in bad shape. She was so ill, it was impossible for her to live alone. She was moved to an assisted living facility, but couldn't stay there because she didn't qualify for skilled nursing. She was turned down for Medicaid because she had money in her checking account that, ironically, her nieces and nephews sent to help her. Irene Long and Gloria's friends stepped in to help. Irene took Gloria into her home, where she and friends cared for her until she needed full-time professional care. She died March 25.

An important factor

Gloria's story illustrates the negative impact Covid-19 had on those who have been forced to live in isolation and are suffering from non-virus illnesses.

Guy Winch, Ph.D., writing in the March issue of Psychology Today, said, "loneliness is an important risk factor in any health crisis because it puts our bodies into a state of stress which can impact the functioning of our immune systems — and the poorer our immune systems function, the less effective they are in fighting off diseases."

Dr. John Cacioppo, a psychology professor at the University of Chicago, studied the effects of loneliness for two decades. He concluded that, "love and social connections are what really matter in life." He equated loneliness with a type of hunger, noting that "establishing social connections is essential for human survival." Yes, love and social connections are what really matter in life — keeping "in touch."

The restrictions imposed upon us by experts took away the "touch" part of "in touch" — no shaking hands, no hugging, no social gatherings, wear masks, build barriers, stop being your brother's keeper.

Roseann's email about Gloria's death reached me in the middle of Easter week, which this year coincided with Passover. I believe the theme of that week, for both faiths, is freedom. For Jews, the freedom of bondage from Egyptian tyranny. For Christians, the freedom from sin and death. Talmudic and Biblical scholars may blanch at my simplistic view-from-the-pew theology, but I know that Gloria is free now.

Gloria Valentino was one of the sweetest people I knew. Poet Thomas Gray wrote:

*Full many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air.*

I believe Gloria knows her sweetness was not wasted. Hers was a life well lived, and deeply appreciated. Requiescat in pace, sweet friend.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE of MARY RODRIGUEZ Case Number 21PR00097

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of MARY RODRIGUEZ.
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by OLIVIA R. NEGRANZA in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

The Petition for Probate requests that OLIVIA R. NEGRANZA be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:

Date: April 28, 2021
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Dept.: 13

Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE. YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST DATED 01/20/1999. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER.
A public auction sale to the highest bidder for cash, (cashier's check(s) must be made payable to National Default Servicing Corporation), drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association, or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state; will be held by the duly appointed trustee as shown below, of all right, title, and interest conveyed to and now held by the trustee in the hereinafter described property under and pursuant to a Deed of Trust described below. The sale will be made in an "as is" condition, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the note(s) secured by the Deed of Trust, with interest and late charges thereon, as provided in the note(s), advances, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, interest thereon, fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee for the total amount (at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale) reasonably estimated to be set forth below. The amount may be greater on the day of sale. Trustor: Gerald K. Tsukimura, an unmarried man. Duly Appointed Trustee: National Default Servicing Corporation, 201/28/1999.
NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage on the trust or the property.

The sale date and time of the sale, postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call or visit this Internet Web site: www.ndscorp.com/sales, using the file number assigned to this case 20-20246-SP-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
